Crops, Beef Farmer Receives York Chamber Award

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

EAST PROSPECT (York Co.) — East Prospect farmer David Evans claims he never went far into the world.

But just a few minutes of visiting with this York County crops and beef farmer, it is evident that, while he may still reside in the same home in which he grew up, he has indeed gone many places and done many things.

One of the more recent places he has been was in the spotlight as an honoree for outstanding service to agriculture, an award presented annually by the York County Chamber of Commerce and the Agriculture Extension Service. The 1998 Agriculture Service Award was bestowed on Evans and his wife Janet during the annual York Agribusiness Dinner in late January.

Evans' father bought the East Prospect farm with its picturesque stone barns in 1937. Co-owner of York's Careva Wholesale Plumbing, George Evans not only purchased the farmstead, he also put a herd of 40 Guernsey dairy cows in the barns and hired several employees to help care for the cattle and 250 acres of crops.

Two Counties Now PRV-Free

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The statewide Pseudorabies Eradication Program continues to show success as two counties, York and Schuylkill, become pseudorabies-free.

According to Dr. Amy Nesselrodt, USDA veterinary medical officer and state pseudorabies virus (PRV) program coordinator, Pennsylvania is in Stage III of the effort — mandatory cleanup of PRV — but more work still needs to be done.

In the state, Perry County has one herd that will be testing off soon. Dauphin County has two herds that should be starting to test off. In Lancaster County, 13 are still quarantined — of those, 11 are believed to be free of disease and are either in the process of testing off quarantine or should be testing off soon. One should be reporting negative and one still has to be tested to ensure it is PRV-free.

"The program is doing well," said Nesselrodt. "With the exception of one herd, we don't see any real threats from the disease."

Comparatively, Pennsylvania remains with Ohio and New Jersey in Stage III of the program. New

The special design allows the feed bins to be rolled into place and locked in front of each cow.

Maryland University Clarksville Farm Has New Dairy Facilities

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

CLARKSVILLE, MD. — For the first time in 20 years the farm and agribusiness public is invited to visit the University of Maryland's Clarksville Research and Education Center farm that has a special focus on dairy research and related uses of forages as a nutrient management tool. The field day and facility dedication is scheduled for July 9, starting at 10 a.m. at the farm.

Robert Kratochvil, head of Central and Western Maryland Research and Education Centers, conducted a preview tour of the new three million dollar facilities on Tuesday. These facilities include new dairy barns, a linear-eight milking parlor, a flush/separator manure system that is used to facilitate dairy manure composting trials.

The 922-acre farm is located in Howard County and is home to the university's 200-head dairy research herd. The farm's origin can be traced to a grant from the king of England to Charles Carroll of King's County, Ireland, who was father of Charles Carroll of Carrollton, one of the signers of the

Dairy Month Issue June 6

A special tribute to the dairy industry is part of the annual June Dairy Month promotion. Lancaster Farming again plans to feature dairy in next week's June 6 issue. We are working to promote the dairy industry through special visits with farm families, DHIA reports, farm management reports, dairy recipes, and messages from our advertisers. Of special note: we plan to introduce the first module of a dairy management course written by a well-known dairy instructor that will be published in 10 weekly lessons and archived on our home page on the Internet for continuing review and use by dairy farmers around the world.

Robert Campbell To Retire: William Burgess To Become New General Manager

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — An era in agricultural leadership and regional newspaper publishing is about to come to an end.

Robert G. Campbell, general manager and executive vice president of Lancaster Farming has announced that he will retire effective June 1 after more than 43 years in the business.

Campbell's experience in newspapers is vast but he may be best known for taking Lancaster Farming to the top of the agricultural publishing industry. He helped start the paper in 1955 and played a huge role in making it one of the most successful agribusiness trade publications on the eastern CATTLE: Compared to last week's closing prices, slaughter steers sold weak to cattle. The market seems to be in a post-holiday slump as boxed beef and futures prices were disappointing this week. Western feedlots had to settle for less money, again this week, to close at mostly 63.00 live and 100.00- 102.00 dressed basis. Slaughter heifers were not well tested. Despite lower boneless beef prices, slaughter cows ended the week steady to 1.00 higher and slaughter bulls closed fully steady. Supply included 55 percent slaughter steers, 4 percent slaughter heifers, 31 percent cows, 4 percent bulls, with the balance feeders.

SLAUGHTER STEERS: High Choice and Prime 2-4 1200-1430 lbs 63.50-68.00. Choice 2-3 1030-1490 lbs 61.75-65.00, high dressing up to 67.00. Select and low Choice 2-3 1030-1480 lbs 58.00-62.50; 1465-1685 lbs 55.00-60.00. Few Select 1-3 1090-1420 lbs 54.50-60.75.

USDA-MO Dept. Ag Market News
DAILY NATIONAL GRAIN SUMMARY

Grain and soybean bids continue to decline since the holiday weekend. Favorable weather conditions for harvesting wheat and planting progress for corn and soybeans, weighed on bids. Wheat 2 to 5 cents lower except Minneapolis 2 cents higher. Corn 3 to 4 cents lower. Sorghum 6 cents lower. Soybeans 3 to 6 cents lower. Wheat harvest is well underway. USDA showed a slight improvement in crop condition ratings. However, test on Texas wheat showed proteins on the low side, limiting losses. Light export sales overnight to South Korea were reported. Rapid planting progress and excellent soil moisture pressured corn and soybean bids. Soybean bids also declined due to lower soybean meal bids and some profit taking on the board. Good overnight corn sales to South Korea but nothing this week for soybeans. Grains inspected for export for week ended 5/21/98: Wheat totaled 20.4, up 9.4 million bushels, corn 24.2, up 900 thousand bushels, sorghum 2.4, down 900 thousand bushels, and soybeans 4.9, down 2.2 million bushels compared to a week ago. Year to date: Wheat 1013.3, up 49.5, Corn 1056.1, down 305.5, sorghum 144.4, down 13.4, and soybeans 812.0, up 27.5. Crop marketing years begin June 1 for wheat and September 1 for corn, sorghum and soybeans.

The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

JUNE 1-7, 1998

ORTHODOX PENTECOST, JUNE 7.

ST. BONIFACE

June 5 marks the feast day of St. Boniface (c. 675), the English monk called the Apostle of Germany, an Anglo-Saxon whose name was originally Winfrid.

(Lest you are confused, there were several Bonifaces: saints, popes, generals, and ministers.) In old England, Boniface came to mean any good-tempered soul or jolly landlord, and "St. Boniface's cup" was that extra glass of spirits offered as a toast to the health of the current pope. This Boniface was not one to encourage sobriety or extreme piety, but as a landlord, he may have been a model of generosity and good faith.

A cask of wine works more miracles than a church full of saints.

TIP OF THE WEEK

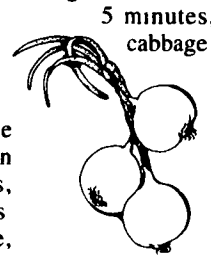
CARAWAY & RED CABBAGE

1/4 cup (1/2 stick) butter
1 red onion, sliced
2 teaspoons caraway seeds
1 head (about 2 pounds) red cabbage
1/4 cup sugar (or less, to taste)
1/3 cup red wine vinegar

Melt butter in a large pot and add onion and caraway seeds, sautéing about 3 minutes Core and slice cabbage, then add to pot and cook until soft, about 5 minutes. Mix sugar in vinegar, and pour over cabbage. Cook about another 5 minutes, or until cabbage is tender.



Makes 8 servings.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

Married in the merry month of June, life will be one honeymoon.

When water rises in wells and springs, rain is approaching.

When rats move shavings away from the windward side of a house, it is going to storm.

The higher the cloud, the finer the weather.

OPINION

Agriculture To Benefit From Dirt Road Program

Pennsylvania's more than 27,000 miles of dirt and gravel roads go hand-in-hand with agriculture and forestry.

For years in Pennsylvania, it was the case, and it still is in some areas, that a local farmer with equipment-handling abilities, interest and time, would be hired to serve as "roadmaster."

While the job title is more or less obsolete, the job is not.

Now, under transportation legislation passed last year as Act 3, the job has been given a new look, new respect and state attention.

The legislation provides $5 million every year in a dedicated line item to be used for dirt and gravel road maintenance.

For rural Pennsylvania, the program is welcome, timely, and, it seems, in greater demand than what can be accommodated in the first several years.

There are two catches. There is a priorty listing, according to listings of watershed quality (the better the quality the higher the priority), for municipalities seeking grants through the program. Also, the local road manager, or roadmaster, must attend educational classes (currently targeted for priority municipalities) being provided around the state through a cooperative effort of state agencies and Penn State Extension.

The educational materials are to provide roadmasters with technologies and a background education that will better enable them to make better decisions when rebuilding and maintaining the dirt and gravel roads under their charge.

For rural municipal governments, the funds should be a welcome relief from having to allow dirt roads to further deteriorate because the limited funding is directed toward local high-traffic hardtop roads.

For agriculture, it may seem to mean nothing, but if it reduces stuck tires, vehicle damage, lost time from accidents or unecessarily washed out or iced-over roads, it can mean more money for agriculture.

Otherwise, good roads just make living that much more enjoyable.

Further, the program acknowledges that, although a common scapegoat, agriculture isn't the worst culprit in accelerating soil erosion and stream sedimentation and in threatening drinking water quality in the state.

Tremendous miles of highways coursing along and over streams throughout the state flush storm water directly into streams with loads of human waste and garbage, motor fuels, oils and solvents, and soils from many non-agricultural activities.

It gets worse in urban areas and especially in cities, and especially older cities.

But most of the state's watersheds are coursed by dirt and gravel roads, and improperly constructed or maintained dirt and gravel roads can be much more serious threats to a stream and water quality for a community.

This program promises to be effective and worthwhile.

Now Is The Time

To Develop Nutrient Management Plans

The Pennsylvania Nutrient Management Law requires all concentrated animal operations (those with two or more animal units per acre) which were in existence when the law became effective on October 1, 1997 to develop and submit a nutrient management plan for their operations by September 30, 1998.

The plan must contain information on number of animals in the operation, nutrients produced, crop nutrient needs and best management practices. The plan needs to include maps of the farm to show field boundaries. Fields need to be identified with acreage and soil types. Crops produced and realistic expected yields need to be established.

The law also states when manure may applied and set backs that must be observed when applying manure near wells, sinkholes, streams, lakes, ponds, etc. For more details on the Nutrient Management Law contact your local conservation district or Penn State Cooperative Extension office.

To Apply For Cost Share Funds

To assist in developing nutrient management plans, the state has developed a cost sharing program. The cost share must be approved prior to the beginning of the planning process. If you are interested in cost share funds, contact your local conservation district office to obtain approval.

For commercially developed plans, the cost share for a farm of 0 to 50 acres is 75 per cent of actual costs not to exceed $250. For 50 or more acres the cost share is 75 per cent of costs not to exceed $4 per acre or $800 per operation. Cost share funds are available for farmer developed plans.

For a plan developed by an individual for his own operation the cost share is $200 for an operation up to 50 acres. For an operation over 50 acres, the cost share is $3 per acre not to exceed $800 per operation. Only concentrated animal operations will be eligible for cost share funds in the first year of the program. After October 1, 1998, voluntary nutrient management plans will be able to receive cost share as well.

To Look at Estate Planning

When was the last time you took a look at your estate plan? If it has been over 5 years you may want to review it. Also, now would be a good time to look at your business succession plan. What plans do you have to pass your farm to the next generation? How are you preparing the next generation to assume management and ownership of the farm?

Estate planning and business succession planning work hand in hand. By developing a plan and then implementing the plan will help to insure the future of your farm. It is important to start early with your children to cultivate their interest in the farm. Treat them fairly and provide them with good wages and working conditions.

Allow them to build assets so they will be in a position to buy into the farm business. Look at estate planning as a method to help implement your plans for the farm. Now is a good time to discuss your future goals for the farm and meet with your advisors to develop your estate and business succession plan.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

WATCH!
May 31, 1998

Background Scripture:
Mark 13

Devotional Reading:
Joel 2:28-32

As we approach the millennium of 2,000 AD, we are hearing and reading dire predictions of the apocalyptic events forecast in the Book of Revelation. Some Christians sincerely believe that "the end times" forecast in the last book of the Bible, as well as Mark 13, are precisely those that will accompany the turn of the century.

Here in Dallas a few weekends ago, a cult group waited expectantly for the return of Christ in a flying saucer. When the day arrived and he did not return, the group reassessed their calculations.

Christians have long divided over the question of Christ's return—when? how? and why? Both Jesus and Paul seem to have expected the coming of the Kingdom of God. But in the Bible Jesus' remarks on his return and the coming of the "end times" are anything but clear. Paul, on the other hand, seems to have expected it as immanent in his earliest letters, but by his later letters, was no longer certain when the last days would occur.

APOCALYPTIC

Part of the problem is the very nature of apocalyptic writing, a style common in Judaism at the beginning of the Christian era. Highly symbolic and abounding in vivid and often inconsistent imagery, it is virtually impossible to interpret literally. It is found in some of the writings of the Old Testament prophets and in the Book of Daniel. The principal example in the New Testament is Revelation, but Mark 13 is also apocalyptic writing.

I wish I could tell you that there is a clear, unified message in Mark 13 and I can explain it to you, but I cannot. I believe, as some scholars do, that Mark 13 is a collection of apocalyptic sayings that were not originally part of one text, explaining why they cannot be easily put together in a consistent message. There is a lot here that is very confusing. At the same time, there is something here for all of us, despite what we may or may not believe about the immanent return of Christ with his kingdom.

Mark 13 begins with one of Jesus' disciples pointing to the Jerusalem temple and saying, "Look Teacher, what wonderful stones and what wonderful buildings!" We can appreciate his reaction for these buildings were very impressive, particularly if we may assume that the person was from the countryside rather than Jerusalem. But Jesus tells this follower that "There will not be left one stone upon another, that will not be thrown down" (13:1, 2). Yes these things are impressive—as many of our churches are today—but they are not enduring. Only one thing endures forever, the will of God.

FALSE MESSIAHS

Secondly, Jesus warns them that "Many will come in my name, saying 'I am he!' and they will lead many astray" (13:6). That is a prophecy that has been fulfilled again and again since the earliest days of the church. Unfortunately, there are always those who will follow these false messiahs.

Third, while Christians wait for Christ's return they are likely to suffer for his sake. "You will stand before governors and kings for my sake, to bear testimony before them" (13:9). When this happens, we are not to think something has gone wrong with God's plan. Actually, these things are evidence that the plan is intact and will be fulfilled.

Fourth, "But of that day or that hour no one knows" (13:32). If someone comes—as they always do—saying when that day will be, don't be taken in by them—as someone always is. One more time NOBODY KNOWS THE DAY OR THE HOUR, "but only the Father."

Finally, the bottom line: "Take heed, watch... Watch therefore..."

"And what I say to you I say to all: Watch" (13:33, 35, 37). When Christ, like the master of the house in the parable, returns, let him find us doing and being what he has called us to do and be.

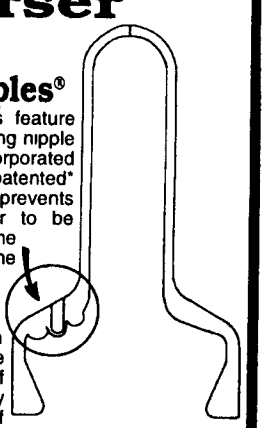
Merrick's
Calf Nurser with Super-Calf™ Nipples®



Merrick's Super-Calf Nipples feature the first advance in calf nursing nipple design in many years Incorporated into the nipple design is a patented* air release valve, which prevents leakage and yet allows air to be released into the bottle as the calf is nursing This ensures the proper flow of milk through the nipple to the nursing calf. This valve is protected with extra "bumpers" for even longer wear In addition, the surface of the Super-Calf Nipple has been specially treated to promote ease of use

State Program Targets Improving Dirt, Gravel Roads

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

INDIANTOWN GAP MILITARY RESERVATION (Lebanon Co.) — There are more than 27,000 miles of dirt and gravel roadways in Pennsylvania.

Most of them are located in the rural areas of the state and its 3.6 million people.

It's a good bet that subscribers of Lancaster Farming have traveled on them, provided oversight leadership concerning them, or actually worked to maintain them.

On Tuesday and Wednesday at a Pa. National Guard facility at the Indiantown Gap Military Reservation located north of Harper's Ferry in Lebanon County, a training program was held for specific municipal road managers so they can do a better job of repairing, building and maintaining dirt and gravel roads.

It was part of a multi-agency, statewide program to educate road managers, or "roadmasters," as to better techniques for maintaining and repairing dirt and gravel roads.

If the managers attend the courses, their municipalities qualify for receiving state funds for maintenance of those roads.

In the spring of last year, a state transportation law was passed (Act 3) that, as part of its $400 million per year for bridge and highway construction and better paved road maintenance, included a provision to annually allocate (non-lapsing) $5 million for public dirt and gravel roads.

The program applies only to those dirt and gravel roads open to public use at least for a portion of the year. It doesn't count the private dirt and gravel roadways or long lanes to farms or through private woodlots and estates.

But, many of the concepts being taught about dirt and gravel road construction and maintenance could easily be applied to farm lanes, especially with bridges, crown construction, side drainage ditches, and the use of different materials.

While the funding in the program is not for private use, the information should still be available to those who request it.

The program is essentially funding for rural communities, many of which are governed by councils consisting of farmers or those familiar with farming.

While most should be familiar with the importance of major paved highways and routes to the state's economy, many may not be aware that dirt and gravel roads are also considered essential to the state's economy.

According to state transportation and conservation officials, dirt and gravel roads are very important to agriculture, as well as outdoor sports tourism and other types of tourism.

In a report from the state's Task Force on Dirt and Gravel Roads, it states, "Although many people perceive of dirt and gravel roads as a nuisance — relics of a slower-paced time in our history waiting to be paved — the facts show these roads are important links in Pennsylvania's overall transportation network.

"Covering more than 27,000 miles throughout the commonwealth, dirt and gravel roads provide vital access for Pennsylvania's major industries — agriculture, mining, forestry, and tourism — while weaving the fabric of rural community life for over 3.6 million residents."

(The Task Force report was written by Kevin Abbey and Woodrow Colbert. A transportation consultant, Abbey has a background in zoology and English and literature, and became involved with the Task Force while director of the state Senate Transportation Committee. Colbert has a bachelor's degree in agriculture and biology from Penn State University. An employee of PennDOT's Bureau of Environmental Quality, he is on temporary loan to the State Conservation Commission, and has been hired to oversee implementation of the state dirt and gravel road maintenance program.)

The Task Force report also noted that more than 90 percent of the dirt and gravel roads are owned and maintained by municipal (local) governments. They have limited coffers and frequently limited tax bases from which to draw funds.

The Task Force position is that local municipalities should not be expected to pave their dirt roads and maintain them.

First of all, the Task Force considers that dirt and gravel roads are unique devices with extremely valuable characteristics all of their own, that road engineers find very cost effective (and some perhaps also find a welcome and different challenge to construct well and understand), and many people find aesthically pleasing to travel and maintain.

However, what the Task Force did recognize is that local governments and authorities with control of dirt and gravel roads need to do a better job of building, repairing and maintaining the roads.

The attitude associated with the state effort does not appear to having any tone of chastisement.

Instead, the program seems constructed with an attitude that seeks to establish a cooperative and mutually beneficial working relationship.

The rationale explaining the benefits of such a relationship seems to be this:

• Municipal governments own some of the state's most undervalued properties — dirt and gravel roads — that can be increased in value and made more of an asset to the state and local community.

• If tools for doing improving those roads are provided to the municipal governments by the state, the locality and the state can become enriched, while at the same time addressing water pollution concerns, since many of the dirt and gravel roads are located in the state's forested and watershed areas.

The roads get better, the water gets cleaner.

The local economy has a better shot at increasing local economic opportunities. At the same time, it has the opportunity to adopt some best management practices that can lower maintenance and repair costs.

Many political leaders throughout the state have expressed strong beliefs in the superiority of local governmental control over local affairs.

While the state has increased its regulatory control over a number of statewide businesses and affairs, its political leadership has been fairly consistent in attempting to allow as much local interpretation and control over programs as possible, especially those concerned with environmental laws and regulations.

Some of the earlier cases in which the state attempted to provide local control to ameliorate environmental problems didn't work well — the state made no provision to ensure local expertise was up to the job of making good interpretations.

As an example, when the state saw fit to allow local interpretation of its 1978 Flood Plain Control Act and Stormwater Management Act, problems quickly arose from so much unmonitored local interpretation.

Local interpretation can be readily challenged by residential development groups, etc., which tend to have greater legal resources that local governments, and can sometimes provide professional spokespeople who are skilled at intimidating local leadership.

In hindsight, many cited a lack of local knowledge about flood plains and stormwater management as the reason for some poor decisions made at the local level.

Work is still being done on stormwater management and the control of development of flood plains.

In the meantime, some lessons apparently have been learned.

Now, many environmental programs in the state rely heavily upon continuing education requirements to maintain at least a minimumun level of local expertise, as well as some sort of local monitoring through local agencies.

Some programs such as the Nutrient Management Act, or the Farmland Preservation Program, have state oversight and local control through Penn State Extension Services, Pa. Department of Agriculture, the county Conservation District or formal review boards consisting of "stakeholders."

The dirt and gravel road program is such a program, and it is being administered through the county Conservation Districts.

(The bulk of the funds are to be used for the projects, with a small fraction allowed for local program administration.)

The Act 3 program set up that local municipalities be given funds for dirt and gravel road maintenance, provided that their road masters or road managers attend educational classes.

State Program Targets

The purpose of the training is to make the roadmasters aware of the environmental impacts of their road construction and maintenance practices.

The program was apparently created with a good understanding of the road manager job and common practices.

It reviews common problems and situations, then provides a mix of introductory level and advanced level educational materials to help provide an enhanced awareness about the negative consequences of some maintenance and construction techniques and corrective measures and considerations.

The topics covered geology and soils, water drainage aspects and and road principals, basic grading principals, erosion control and sedimentation, bank stabilization, maintenance, technologies, regulations and grants.

A common theme in the entire program is watershed protection, its proper care, and prevention of water pollution.

Those seeking to prevent water pollution were the source of force behind the effort to establish the new program.

But water flows are integral to the nature of dirt and gravel roads.

For example, a bend in a dirt road, depending on how it was constructed, can become a water trap.

The trapped water saturates the soil, disolving some of the soluable particles, incorporating some of the suspended solids, and acting as a lubricant for the movement of particles.

When a vehicle drives through the area, the wet area is soft and pushes out. Any standing water sprays away from the tire, taking with it what road engineers call "fines," the small particles.

The fines wash out and the larger road materials become loose, and begin to be moved out with successive useage.

Eventually a rut is formed, and the longer it is allowed to remain and hold water, the faster that stretch of road will erode.

Too dry of a road can cause dust problems.

Dust from dirt roads can be controlled through various methods, such as spraying with approved non-toxic adhesives or dampening or binding agents.

Large-scale highway construction with finished surfaces appear fairly generic over long stretches, and detatched from local landscape.

They should be expected to have well built-up subsurfaces engineered to avoid saturation under normal seasonal conditions.

However, dirt and gravel roads are part of the environment in which they are built. They are a manipulation of the environment, rather than a challenge to it.

According to Karl Brown, executive secretary of the State Conservation Commission (SCC), a reference is under contract with Penn State University to development and publish.

He said the state Department of Environmental Resources and the Task Force had compiled all existing standards and specifications for non-paved roads. He said it's referred to as the "Yellow Book," but it is too unweildly to easy use.

He said Penn State is to be finishing on second generation work, more appropriate to use on dirt and gravel roads.

"It's certinaly valuable to farmers and roadmasters and other people," he said.

He also said that of the $5 million allocated, $1 million is to go directly to the state Department of Conservation of Natural Resources Bureau of Forestry.

The remaining $4 million are to be directed through the SCC and then through county districts. The money comes from the state's Motor Vehicle License fund, otherwise known as the gas tax.

Locally, the program is to be administered through a quality control board consisting of a four-member board.

Two members of the board are to be appointed by the county conservation district board of directors. The other two are to be a representative of the local field office of the USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS), and a representative of the Pa. Fish and Boat Commission.

Of those from the county conservation district, one is to serve as non-voting chairperson of the quality board, while the other is a voting member. They can be directors, associated directors, staff, or anyone else the district board chooses to appoint.

To local conservation district is to assist road managers, coordinate the dirt and gravel road program a the county level, and to review the one-page applications (still being finalized) from the municipalities and other eligible agencies.

As soon as the applications are finalized and made available, conservation districts can begin accepting and reviewing them.

Because it is in its first year, and because the state has identified specific watersheds with high quality or high value streams for immediate attention, the program is to initially be offered only to those within those designated watersheds.

After work on those initial areas is underway the program will open up to other areas.

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Agricultural Land Preservation Board recently approved easement purchases for 20 farms across the commonwealth.

Created in 1989, the Pennsylvania Agricultural Land Preservation Board is responsible for the oversight of the state Farmland Preservation Program.

The program allows the state and counties to purchase development rights, referred to as easements, to guarantee that farms will remain as agricultural land.

Average Farm Feed Costs For Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's last week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania.

Remember, these are averages, so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

Corn, No.2y — 2.80 bu., 5.02 cwt.

Wheat, No. 2 — 2.84 bu., 4.74 cwt.

Barley, No. 3 — 1.96 bu., 4.20 cwt.

Oats, No. 2 — 1.62 bu., 5.05 cwt.

Soybeans, No. 1 — 6.27 bu., 10.46 cwt.

Ear Corn — 84.70 ton, 4.24 cwt.

Alfalfa Hay — 152.75 ton, 7.64 cwt.

Mixed Hay — 137.50 ton, 6.88 cwt.

Timothy Hay — 130.00 ton, 6.5 cwt.

Pa. DHIA Testing Saves Money

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Pa. DHIA can put money in your pocket for just pennies a year.

The following facts are based on 50-cow herd for one year, at $12 per hundredweight cwt. used for milk price.

- Dropping SCC code by one (4 to 3) will increase profits by $2,400.
- One Code 8 cow produces as many somatic cells as 32 Code 3 cows.
- One or two high SCC cows can keep the whole herd from receiving quality bonus. Example: 50 cow herd with a 17,000 pound herd average would lose $1,700 per year (20 percent cwt. bonus).
- Cutting calving interval from 14 months to 13 months increases profits by $4,500.
- Reducing breeding services per cow from 2.2 to 1.7 will save $250 per year in semen cost alone for a 50 cow herd using $10/unit semen.
- By reducing feed cost $1 – per hundred weight of milk, you will save $8,500 in one year.
- Overfeeding grain one pound per day will cost $1,642 at $9 cwt.
- In the last 90 days of a cow's lactation, feeding three pounds less will save over $1,212 at $9 per cwt.
- You can identify low testing cows, so borderline production cows can be culled. Example: Cow A 17,000 lbs. @ 2.8% fat = $1,945 milk value. Example: Cow B 17,000 lbs. @ 3.7% fat = $2,067 milk value.
- Increasing rolling herd average by 1,000 pounds per cow increases gross income by $6,000.
- Increased milk production of one half pound per day/per cow pays for DHIA AM/PM testing.

Feel free to contact Dean Amick at 800-344-8378 if you have any questions or would like a representative of PA DHIA to stop by your farm to explain your PA DHIA records or begin a testing program.

Maryland University Clarksville Farm Has New Dairy Facilities

Declaration of Independence. In 1951, the farm was purchased by the state of Maryland for use by the Department of Mental Hygiene to both produce and process milk for the state mental hospitals.

In 1957, the farm was transfered to the University of Maryland with the stipulation that the milk produced continue to supply the mental hospitals. For a number of years after the university gained title to the farm, milk continued to be processed on site and shipped to the state mental hospitals. In the early 1960's, the university opened its processing plant on campus as a teaching facility. From that date, milk produced at Clarksville was sent to College Park for processing but continued to supply the state's mental hospitals. In the late 80's the agreement between the Department of Mental Hygiene and the university was rescinded. Since that time, milk produced on the farm has been marketed through one of the local milk cooperatives, currently Land O'Lakes.

The most recent renovation of the facility began seven or eight years ago with money obtained from funds stashed away from the sale of the university's research farm located on Cherry Hill Road in College Park. Now the first-clsss research facility supports the university's dairy science programs and is booked full with agribusiness research projects both large and small.

"The primary focus here is in support of the dairy science program at College Park," Kratochvil said. "We have a considerable amount of activity in agronomic work with forage production as a nutrient management tool. This includes the development of wetlands as part of the ongoing research. We expect to see an increase in environmental work because of the new regulations now in effect in Maryland. We are an animal operation, and all animal operations will now be faced with the same sort of problems as the poultry industry.

The 120-cow Holstein milking herd and 80 head of replacement stock are housed in new open truss barns. Facilities are present to feed and moniter excretion from individual cows. The milking parlor operates semi-automatically so that individual cows can be handled for blood testing or other special treatment while the other cows in the parlor continue to come and go as they are milked.

A new experiment expected to be completed by open house day will be water bowls installed in place of the feeding places in the parlor. Tom Moreland, dairy program manager, said studies show that cows have a need to drink a lot of water right after being milked. This experiment will allow the cows to have that drink and keep cool right in the parlor.

Milk production data is transferred into computers, along with feed data right from the parlor. This data is electronically transferred to College Park. Statistical analysis can now be speedily obtained as soon as two weeks after the trial has been completed. In addition, preliminary and on-going data can be studied as the trial progresses.

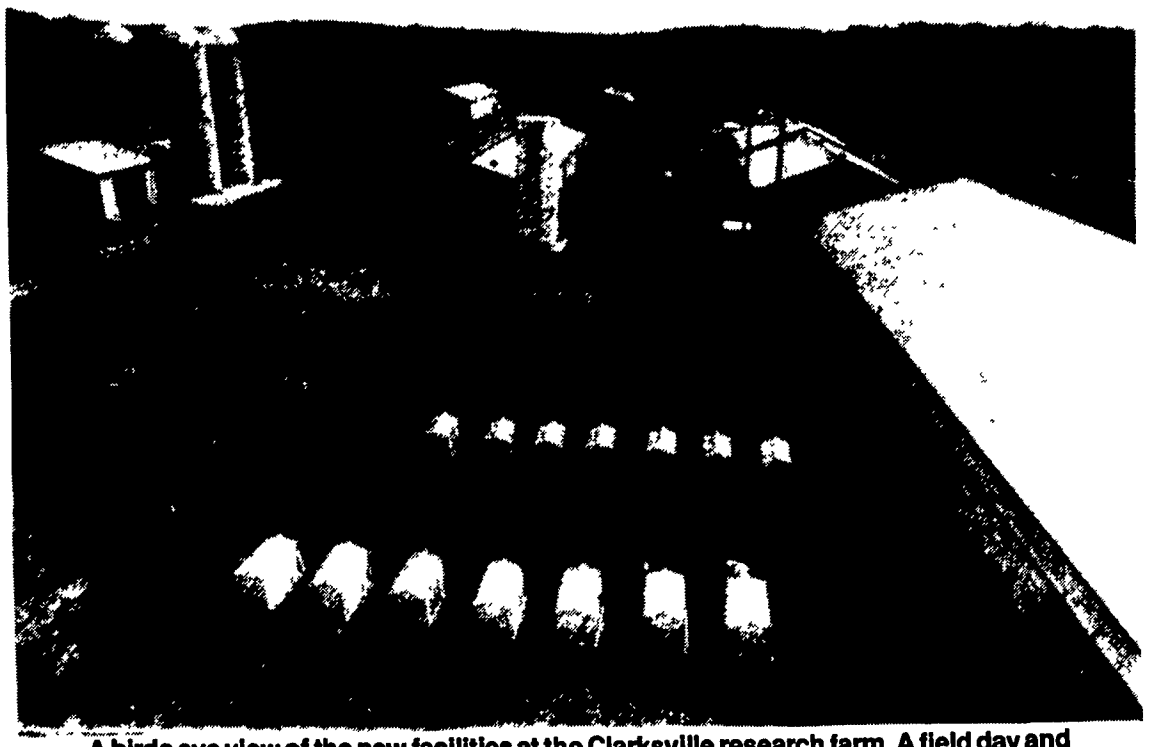
"Research projects have been continuous since we have the new facilities completed," Moreland said. "And we have to stack the projects because you can only use a certain number of cows in any one trial. It is a lot of individual work."

Cows are tethered to individual feed bins that are mobile and lock in place in front of each cow for intensive feed studies and individual rations. The gutters are deep to accommodate pans to catch the excretion from each cow.

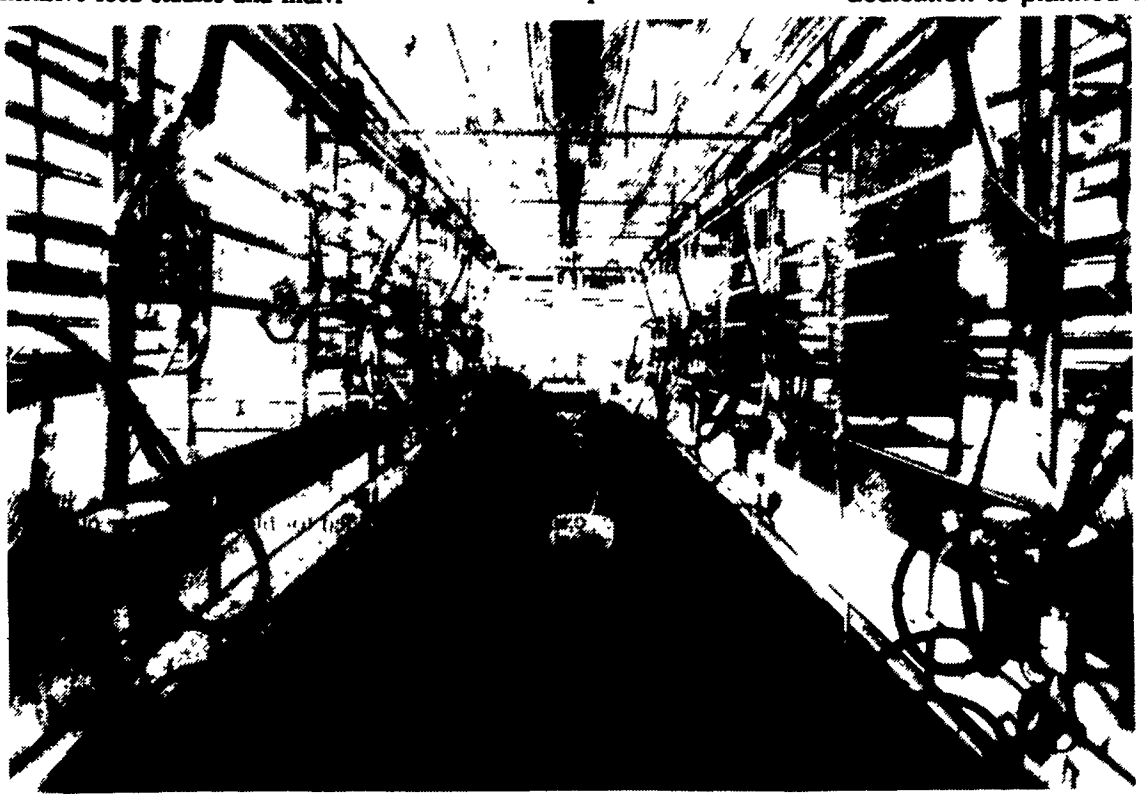
In the free-stall barns a flush system is in place that takes the manure to a settling basin and on to a holding tank that is agitated and pumped through the separator. In the separator the manure is filtered down through grates to release the solids to the ground to be put into the composting system, and the liquids to the second holding tank to be pumped to the lagoons across the road. From the secondary lagoon the water is pumped to irrigate the fields, returned to the flush system in the barns, or put into the wetland filtering trials.

Benny Erez, who is in charge of the composting operation, believes this method of handling manure will have a place in the future dairy business because of the need to move manure off the farm.

"This is a good way to export manure," Erez said. "Composting helps to stablize the nitrogen, reduce the odor problems and develop a product to sell from the farm. To date, however, the cost of composting dairy manure with the extra labor it takes has not been fully documented."



A birds eye view of the new facilities at the Clarksville research farm. A field day and dedication is planned for July 9, 1998.



The milking parlor allows individual cows to be retained for further research projects while the other cows in the row are released after milking.

At the field day next month, all these points of interest, along with a full schedule of reports by the teaching and research faculty at the university, will be part of the program. While the state dairy judging team conducts a practice session, dairy tours around the farm will include reports on somatic cell counts, handling of dairy manure, and marketing milk with futures. The lunch and dedication ceremony is scheduled for 12:30 p.m. The extended program can be found in a sidebar to this article.

MDIA To Meet June 9 At Cove Mountain Farm

HANCOCK, Md. — The Maryland Dairy Industry Association (MDIA) has scheduled a board of directors meeting Tuesday, June 9 at Cove Mountain Farm north of here.

Cove Mountain Farm is the dairy test farm for the American Farmland Trust.

The meeting will convene at 10:30 a.m. at the farmhouse. A sandwich luncheon will be served at noon, followed by a tour of the new milking parlor and a discussion of the New Zealand model of grassland farming and low-maintenance dairy production.

The farm is the "American Farmland Trust pilot farm for grazing," according to Will Godwin, MDIA treasurer.

The farm will showcase the "greatly reduced overhead method of producing milk," said Paul S. Weller Jr., MDIA executive director.

Address of the facility is 12462 Little Cove Road, Mercersburg, PA 17236, (717) 328-4400. Farm manager is Brian Petrucci.

Directions: take I-70 to Exit 5 (west of Clearspring). After exiting, turn left at stop sign. Take first right (Hollow Road) and travel north. This becomes Pa. Rt. 456 across the stone bridge. Follow Rt. 456 about three miles into Little Cove.

Entrance to the farm is on the right, just past the Methodist church. Look for the farm sign.

Ag Safety Workshops Provide Important Training

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

BEAVER SPRINGS (Snyder Co.) — Really great things often come in (barn) packages.

Just ask Cynthia Shaffer, ag instructor and FFA adviser at West Snyder High School in Beaver Springs.

In January at a national safety workshop at the Crown Plaza Hotel near the airport in Atlanta, Ga., participants were handed a box shaped like a barn, with a red exterior and multicolored roof.

What was astonishing to those who participated was what the box contained.

Shaffer is convinced there is enough resources and material in the box than her students could ever use for farm safety, she said.

The box contained a computer CD-ROM, filled with an index providing safety topics for a wide range of farm and nonfarm activities. She found a 50-page handy resource guide for instructors of farm safety. Shaffer also found video tapes, stickers, signs, and other material to help not only teach children farm safety, but to make children teachers of farm safety.

The workshop in Atlanta was cosponsored by a wide array of commercial enterprises, including large farm equipment, seed, chemical, and other companies. The program, coordinated by the National FFA Foundation, is called Partners For a Safer Community.

National release of the project began during the winter with the training of 136 educators, community representatives, and students representing 47 states in Atlanta, Denver, and Minneapolis. The purpose of the program: educate instructors on the materials available to teach farm and off-farm safety.

The workshops were tested through a test pilot project in Missouri before being used nationwide. "A lot of research was put into it, and it shows," said Shaffer of West Snyder High School.

"As an ag teacher, I wanted to teach safety to my shop classes," she said. "But the material we used worked better than anticipated. The information was very valuable. I found more information that my students ever use in one box."

There was concern among the educators at the workshop that the material was too complex to fully integrate quickly midway in to the school year's curriculum. But many schools elected to use the resource guide and other materials in the box right away, Shaffer noted.

Some of Shaffer's students spoke about the importance of safety through a series of radio presentations. Importantly, on May 13, the FFA students (of which safety training is required of all first-year members) presented a workshop to students in kindergarten through sixth grade during Safety Day at West Beaver and Beaver Adams elementary schools.

During the Safety Day, the sixth graders were provided information about gun safety. The fifth graders were instructed on ATV and lawn mower safety. Fourth graders studied tractor and farm equipment safety. Third graders were taught fire and chemical safety. Second grade students were given the basics of first aid. First grade classes were provided information on strangers, dangers, and 911. And the kindergarten classes were taught animal safety.

Along with fellow FFA adviser Steve Kline, Shaffer believes the "box" could be effective during a state safety workshop in Pennsylvania.

As a result, working with Kerry Hoffman, Penn State pesticide education coordinator, a state training workshop will be conducted Monday, Oct. 12, at a site to be determined in the Hershey area. The workshop will be coordinated with the assistance of ag engineering services at Penn State. More about that will be available in a later issue of Lancaster Farming.

The impressive part of the national workshop training is that it involved ag science students.

Carolyn Howard, daughter of Mary Herman, Beavertown, participated in the national training. Carolyn will be in the 10th grade at West Snyder High School. Like many student representatives and FFA'ers who take the course (West Snyder FFA has a total of 65 members), the course was designed to allow students to learn about safety and "a lot of guidance and how to apply skills and leadership, much like county FFA leadership workshops," said Shaffer.

The national workshop selected younger students so they can spend their remaining years in high school imparting safety knowledge to other students.

In the meantime, Shaffer said that students and FFA members will be continuing to make presentations at various activities, including farm organization meetings.

For more information about the Partners program, contact Shaffer at (717) 658-8144 or Kerry Hoffman, (814) 865-2134.

seaboard with a weekly circulation of 50,000 and an average of 188 tabloid pages per week.

William J. Burgess, currently serving as assistant general manager of Lancaster Farming has been promoted to general manager and will assume this position Monday.

Burgess is a graduate of Marquette University, Milwaukee, Wis. and brings more than 20 years of newspaper experience to Lancaster Farming He started his career as a classified advertising manager for Ingersol Newspapers and The Evening Bulletin. From 1982-93, Burgess was retail advertising manager and city advertising manager for the Philadelphia Inquirer and Daily News. Since 1993, he has been publisher of Suburban Publications (a division of Journal Register Company in Wayne) and Hanover Publications/Evening Sun (a division of Media News Group of Hanover).

In making the retirement announcement, Campbell who owned Lancaster Farming prior to its sale to Lancaster Newspapers in 1987, said it is time to let the next team take over.

"After 43 years, I think it is time to turn the operation over to a new generation," Campbell said. "It was a great experience developing an idea into a successful business."

The impact on the regional agribusiness economy by Robert Campbell in his work as publisher of Lancaster Farming is well documented. Many ag leaders believe he has done more for agriculture than any other person in the business.

Campbell is also well known in the area for his active participation in various groups and organizations over the years.

He is a past president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, a former board member of AAA, a past president of American Business Clubs, Conestoga Chapter, and a former regional board member of Mellon Bank, to name a few.

A native of Lancaster, Campbell graduated from the Valley Forge Military Academy and the University of Pennsylvania's Wharton School He served in the U.S. Army during the Korean War and received two bronze stars. Later he worked for Lancaster Newspapers in retail advertising before leaving to help start Lancaster Farming in 1955. Campbell worked as general manager of the paper for three years before purchasing it.

In accepting the general manager position Burgess said he was pleased to be able to continue the tradition of service to the farm community.

"Over the years, this publication has become the clearing house for news and advertising messages the farmer needs to run a farming operation," Burgess said. "Many people call it the farmer's bible. As the future needs and challenges of agriculture become apparent, we will be here to help the agribusiness community communicate the farming message in any way possible."

Also included in the leadership transition is the Ephrata Review, the local town weekly newspaper with more than a century as the community mainstay where Lancaster Farming is published; The Lititz Record Express, a sister publication with a long history of publication; and the in house Susquehanna Printing.

Though he spent his childhood helping tend the farm, Dave did take an off-farm job one summer, driving truck for a roofing company. Despite the good wages, one summer was enough to convince him that farming was what he really wanted to do with his life.

"I hated it," recalls this quiet-spoken farmer of his brief, off-farm job. "I never wanted to go back."

After high school graduation in 1949, he left again to pursue a two-year agricultural-degree at Penn State. But when a key employee left within a year, Evans cancelled his college plans and come home for good to manage Margaretta Furnace Farms, with the Guernsey herd then doubled to 80 head.

In 1953, neighborhood farm daughter Janet Gilbert became his wife. Over the years, the family grew by three daughters, Victoria, Christine and Corinne, expanding to include their families and five grandchildren through the ensuing decades.

Dairying was phased out in 1971, giving way to more grain and beef production. Today, Evans farms 900 acres within a five-mile radius of the farm planted to corn, wheat, barley, soybeans and hay and annually feeds out 50-80 head of fat cattle. Just as his own farming interests have altered over the years, so Dave Evans has watched agriculture in general to adapt to progress.

"Marketing has changed," asserts this grain producer, who has a keen eye for the daily commodity price swings. "When we started, a farmer could make a living with a strong back. Now, a farmer has to be a business person. You must market right, buy right, sell right."

"It's just different today," Evans insists.

While commodity marketing plays a big role in Evans farming operation, he has no hard-and-fast philosophy, except perhaps to remain flexible.

"We store, we spot market, we contract," Evans ticks off as his marketing methods. Having 40,000 bushels worth of bin storage room has, in most years, proven to be a reasonable hedge against grain price vulnerability. But, he is quick to point out that this past season, with grain prices leveraging downward since harvest, goes against most marketers' experience.

Figuring soybean futures to be somewhat flat long-range, Evans leaned heavier toward corn acres for this planting season. And, though a long-time, no-till advocate, Evans will readily lug a chisel plow onto fields as he sees a need based on soil and weather conditions.

While farming is Dave Evans lifelong vocation, the machine love of his life is not the tractors or combines neatly parked away in the farm sheds. That honor goes to another motorized "vehicle" parked nearby in its own private shelter: his Cessna 172 four-seater, private airplane.

Evans became intrigued with flying in the 1950s, taking lessons between cropping and milking cows. Lack of time and the cost of flying limited his involvement. Life without a milking string left a little more free time; and, in 1971, he purchased his first plane. Then, Dave Evans got serious about learning to fly.

A 1400-foot airstrip, licensed since 1972, is kept neatly mown, with the nearby small, open-sided shelter housing his prized plane. Six years ago, daughter Corinne also earned her wings; now, father and daughter often fly activities together. Janet, though not a pilot herself, enjoys passenger status. Evans holds an instrument rating, allowing him to fly in less than clear, perfect weather, while Corinne is working on her instrument clearance.

"It's a different world up there," grins Evans, whose enthusiasm for flying is almost contagious. "And, since our daughter flies, it's even more enjoyable."

Still, the sleek little Cessna – his third and "maybe last" plane – is not just a hobby aircraft, but an important farm tool. Evans often flies to pick up equipment parts, holding machinery downtime to a minimum during critical planting and harvest windows.

The plane has also brought opportunities for the Evans' to travel and vacation in unique ways. Though he has never flown north into Canada, Evans often sets a heading for south, to places like the Atlantic coast, Florida, the Bahamas. Both Pennsylvania's Ag Progress Days and New York's comparable Empire Days agriculture expositions are near-annual destinations on the Evans' flight log. And, when a large group of private planes converged a few years ago on the Dominican Republic for a celebration and tour honoring the landing of Christopher Columbus, Dave and Corinne were among the pilots.

Evans is quick to emphasize the safety of flying, though – of all things – a bag of potato chips once gave them a brief scare.

"We usually fly in the 3,000 to 4,000 feet range, but that day we headed up to 7,000 feet," explains Evans. "Janet had an unopened bag of potato chips along in the back. All of a sudden there was this loud bang."

Though the exploding sound initially startled the Evans, concern turned to laughter when they realized the air pressure change had caused the chip bag to burst. It also left them wondering what would have happened if they had flown at a higher altitude the day they had hauled a whole case of York County potato chips along on a flight.

Sandwiched between cropping operations, moving cattle and flight plans, Dave Evans has also made time to serve the York agriculture community in many ways. He is chairman of the York Farm Services committee, chairs the Agway local committee, serves on the Agribusiness committee of the Chamber of Commerce and has been active on the York Farm and Natural Land Trust for land preservation.

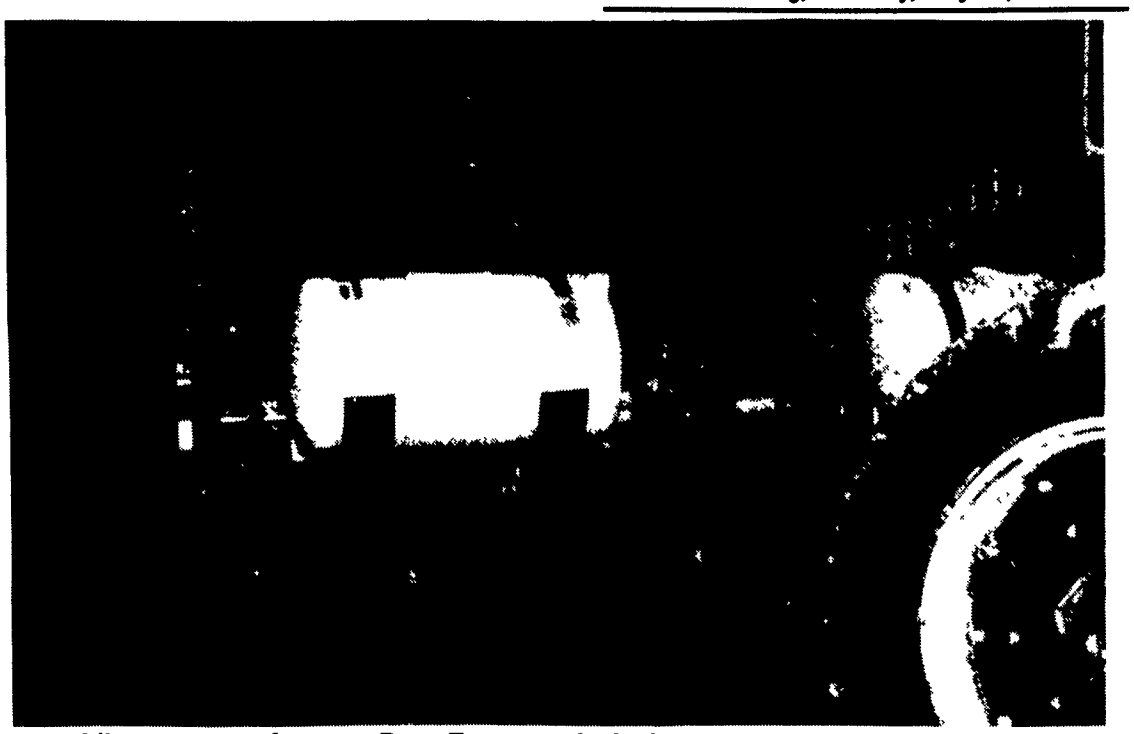
Evans was also instrumental in helping form a committee within the Eastern Area School District to restore agriculture studies to the curriculum and served as chair of the group for several years. And, both Dave and Janet faithfully serve in various capacities as members of the East Prospect United Methodist Church.

"A lot of people can't relate to a farmer any more; they have no background in agriculture," he says as one of the reasons he continues in a role as an agricultural advocate. "Too many people think food just comes from supermarkets."

An active and healthy 66, Evans looks forward to farming just as long as he can. When a 1300-pound bull shoved a gate into him a few years ago, breaking several ribs, collapsing his lungs and sending him to a ten-day hospital stay, Evans dreaded the anticipated long recovery period. A similar accident sometime before had sent Janet into a painful, six-week recuperative period.

But less than a day after returning home from hospitalization, Evans was up and walking around and checking up on the farm. He credits that to good health and durability based on an active, farming lifestyle.

"You can't find a better way of life," he asserts. "As long as I can make a living at this and I'm able, I'll keep at it."



Like most area farmers, Dave Evans made the best of the recent extended rain delay with shop time, fine tuning planting equipment.

Grain Producers To Promote E-85 June 1

EDGEWATER, Md. — The Maryland Grain Producers Association (MGPA) will be promoting the use of E-85 as an alternative to gasoline on Monday, June 1, as the Ethanol Vehicle Challenge cars drive through Montgomery County.

The promotion will be held at the farm of Robert Raver on Mount Ephriam Road in Dickerson.

MGPA is a strong supporter of E-85 fuel, which is made up of a blend of 85 percent ethanol and 15 percent gasoline.

"Expanding the E-85 market is very important to Maryland farmers as it provides an alternative use for corn which helps stabilize grain prices," said Melvin Baile, Jr., president of MGPA. "Today's use of corn in the ethanol market, through E-10 blends that are used in all vehicles and in the growing E-85 market, is estimated to provide an additional 45¢ per bushel for grain farmers across the country."

The 1998 Ethanol Vehicle Challenge is bringing engineering teams from 14 colleges and universities across the country to Washington, D.C. The competition, sponsored by the United States Department of Energy (DOE) and General Motors Corporation (GM), challenges top automotive engineering students to design, build, and test dedicated ethanol-fueled vehicles.

Participating schools received a 1997 Chevrolet Malibu powered by 3.1 liter V6 engine, plus one spare engine from GM. The students then put their engineering skills to the test. The challenge is to re-engineer the vehicle to run on a blend of E-85. The objective of the competition is to optimize fuel economy, emissions, and cold-start characteristics without sacrificing driveability and performance.

"The Ethanol Challenge teams are demonstrating in the most tangible and practical sense that domestic fuels and today's automobiles are a winning combination. E85 is good for our economy and good for our environment," said Tom Gross, deputy assistant secretary for transportation technologies, USDOE.

There are to companies who offer vehicles that run on E85. All 3.3 litre Chrysler mini vans will run on E85. Ford offers the Taurus as a flexible fuel version at no extra cost and starting with model year 1999 all 3.0 litre Ranger pickups will run on E85. These flexible fuel vehicles will run on an 85 percent blend of Ethanol or 100 percent gasoline or any combination in between.

"We want to make people aware of the alternative fuel option so we can get enough vehicles available to establish an ethanol refueling infrastructure," said Baile.

The schools competing in The Ethanol Challenge are Cedarville College, Ohio; Crowder College, Missouri; GMI Engineering & Management Institute, Michigan; Idaho State University; Illinois Institute of Technology; Mankato State University, Minnesota; University of California, Riverside; University of Illinois at Chicago; University of Kansas; University of Nebraska, Lincoln; University of Texas at Austin; University of Texas at El Paso; University of Waterloo, Ontario, Canada; and Wayne State University, Michigan.

Judging will be held at the General Motors Proving Ground in Milford, Michigan, beginning May 25. After five days of competition, the teams will motorcade to Washington, D.C. where they will join the activities of the National Clean Cities Conference stopping in Dickerson, in Montgomery County on June 1. On June 2, the students and sponsors will display their vehicles on the capitol grounds.

Southeast Regional Small Fruit Meeting Set

POTTSVILLE (Schuylkill Co.) — Strawberry growers and individuals interested in growing strawberries are invited to a twilight meeting sponsored by Penn State Cooperative Extension.

The meeting will be held Wednesday, June 3 at 6:30 p.m. at James Rodichok Farm, Tower City. This meeting will qualify for update credits.

Speakers for the meeting will be: Dr. Joseph A Fiola, specialist in small fruit and viticulture, Rutgers Cooperative Extension, New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station. He will discuss strawberry production on raised bed plastic culture with trickle irrigation. A demonstration plot will be observed with 3, 2, and 1 year production with this system.

Scott Walker, Jersey Asparagus Farms, Inc., who has five years experience with this system, will discuss their production accomplishments. A sprayer demonstration for the control of weeds, insects, and disease on strawberries will be offered.

Hereford Field Day Has Discussions On Beef Industry Direction

OBERLIN, Kan. — Attendance nearly tripled from the previous year at the 1998 American Hereford Association Genetic Outreach Program (GOP) Field Day in May.

Three speakers highlighted the agenda in Oberlin, Kan., on May 7. As they spoke, a consensus rang clear: successful producers will plan their genetics to focus on carcass traits, manage the cattle correctly, and find alliances to fit their cattle into niche markets.

The event kicked off May 6 with a four-man scramble golf tournament at the Heritage Hills Golf Course in McCook, Neb. Pfizer Animal Health sponsored an evening meal of Certified Hereford Beef (CHB), a social and an educational program to conclude the day's activities.

Pfizer's Senior Territory Manager Don Hubbell, N. Platte, Neb., spoke to producers about the importance of pre-conditioning and good health programs. The field day concluded May 7 with a tour of Decatur County Feed Yard to check the progress of the nearly 800 head of Herefords participating in the GOP feedlot and carcass test.

Daryl Tatum, professor of animal sciences at Colorado State University, asked producers to think more like a packer when zeroing in on market cattle value. He said producers who market cattle on a formula or grid basis are discovering huge value differences, as much as $100-$200 difference per head, in lots that may appear consistent but have varying components that affect value.

"In the packer's eye, not all cattle are created equal," he said. The packer's job is to dismantle a carcass and process it to sort out value. Many factors, such as hide, organs, bones and fat, can affect his profitability.

Tatum said weight distribution in the carcass drives value. He said the proportion of red meat yield coming from the carcass to the cuts needs to be maximized, along with the proportion of carcass vs. noncarcass components. Although a carcass may have a high dressing percent, much of that weight can be pulled off in fat, bone, feet, organs, and fill.

He said fat, the most variable component of the carcass, will be viewed differently in the future as more is fed or bred off. Today, fat has the biggest impact on composition and cutability. Instrument grading will shift this focus to muscling.

"I think what you're going to see in the next 10-year span in our industry is that muscling is going to play a big part in terms of determining value — much greater than it does now."

Yield grades will be determined to the nearest tenth of an inch with future grading techniques. "Then, all of the sudden that becomes a powerful marketing tool, a powerful pricing tool," he said. "It also becomes a powerful selection tool for cattlemen."

He predicts more emphasis on traits that affect quality — marbling, maturity and color of lean — with instrument grading and video imaging equipment that better determine quality factors and tenderness. Tatum said the discounts for Standard grade will continue to get bigger because there is little market for that product.

At the 1998 American Hereford Association Genetic Outreach Program Field Day, participants viewed the progress of nearly 800 head on a test at Dacatur Co. Feed Yard in Oberlin, Kan. The steers are averaging 4.24 pounds ADG after nearly 80 days on test.

Tatum discussed and showed examples of cattle types to the audience. He urged producers to hit a target of minimum 63% dressing percent and Yield Grade 2. He warned producers against straddling the fence.

"The cattle either have to have some quality performance in terms of marbling ability and quality grade or they've got to have some cutability performance," he said. "Otherwise you're just left in limbo."

Rob Ames, CHB head of product marketing, said the beef industry is undergoing a revolutionary change in how we operate due to rapid marketplace and consumer change. America's demographics will undergo a major renovation in the near future: baby boomers will have the predominant spending power, the Asian and Hispanic populations will expand rapidly, and 50 percent of the population is expected to be single adults by the year 2010.

Ames said these changes will create a need for a variety of products that fit consumers' lifestyles, economic situations, family structure, and ethnicity.

"We're no longer a meat and potatoes country. We're no longer steaks, hamburgers, and roasts," he said. "We're fajitas, we're teriyaki beef on rice. We're all kinds of menu items and options. We're all kinds of cutting styles and we're all kinds of portions."

Ames said this creates several problems in how the beef industry does business now.

• Size — "We've talked for years about cattle being too big or small for the box. When you get down to the meal, we've got cattle that might fit the box perfectly, but don't fit the meal." He added that many cuts on the ends of the carcass, particularly big, monster cuts, are difficult to fabricate and haven't always been fabricated in a consumer-friendly manner. To fit small households, Ames said we must improve fabrication to market products that fit the 3 oz. serving size (approximately the size of a deck of cards) recommended by most health groups.

• Convenience-orientation — Beef needs to be packaged in an attractive package that is easy to heat and eat. To much product is still marketed fresh and in a cut that is hard for today's consumer to know how to prepare. Consumers want home meal replacements — "Bundled meals that are ready to take home and pop in the microwave oven."

• Variety — Most beef is not a steak item. The challenge will be to merchandise the non-steak items through different channels, providing more options to fit the ethnic and socially-driven preferences of consumers. He said some options will require a different cutting style and a different part of the animal.

Although Ames said producers cannot make the beef industry consumer-focused, they can play a role in management and technology to provide a better product to packers. Ration, time on feed, age at slaughter, preconditioning, age at castration, and implant protocol all have a result on the end product sold. He said producers must think proactively: choose a genetic plan and sick to it, determine what works in the operation and produce it consistently, practice beef quality assurance programs, concentrate on low-cost production, avoid extremes in production and cattle types, and form marketing alliances.

Marcine Moldenhauer, value-added procurement program manager for Excel Corp., said the packing industry is undergoing new grading technology that will provide more accurate yield and quality grades in the future. She identified several obstacles for the beef industry.

• Yield grade discounts — She predicts that current $1-3 discounts for upper Yield Grade 3 cattle will increase to $8-10 discounts in the future, and Yield Grade 4 and 5 cattle will receive $20-30 discounts.

• Maturity — Cattle should typically be slaughtered between 13-18 months to fall into the "A" maturity grade. However, many young cattle are showing signs of advanced maturity due to factors such as geographic area, poor health, poor nutrition, genetics, water, and abuse or misuse of implant programs.

• Percentage of cattle reaching Prime quality grade — Only 2.5 percent of cattle slaughtered receive a Prime grade. However, the National Beef Quality Audit said seven percent of cattle could reach this grade without a decrease in price and value. "If you've got some of those Prime cattle out there that are yield grading 1, 2, or 3, you need to now about it," she said.

• Dark cutters — Producers must select for disposition, as well as provide proper health techniques and an adequate nutritional level, use implants properly and provide adequate water before shipping. She said one steer with a disposition problem will usually affect four to five other steers in a 100-head pen.

• Misfits — "Fifteen years ago, we probably had 45 carcass buyers across the United States that bought out cattle," she said. "Today, there are basically 10." Buyers are becoming more selective in what they buy, and are turning away cattle that are too light, too heavy, Yield Grade 4 or 5, dark cutters, heiferettes, too mature, or have discolored fat.

• Carcass damage — She suggested that producers be aware of factors such as injection sites and broken needles left in cattle; bruises; measle or blister beef (caused by ingested feed contaminated by a human carrier with tapeworms); pathology (liver condemnation); and hide damage due to mud, urine, branding, insect damage, and grubs.

• Consistency in meeting carcass targets — Moldenhauer recommended an ideal carcass target of 625-800 pound carcass, 12-13 square-inch rib eye area, and .3-4 inch of backfat.

She summarized her action plan for producers with three main points: 1) measure performance and carcass traits, 2) develop a written business plan, and 3) "participate. If you don't participate, don't complain."

Two Counties Now PRV-Free

York is in Stage V, along with Maryland, Delaware, and West Virginia.

The national goal is complete eradication of the disease.

Ohio has no infected herds but continues in Stage III because producers still want to buy or sell feeder pigs. In the meantime, they will move, gradually, to Stage IV (PRV-free but needing to validate PRV status), and Stage V, officially free.

Nesselrodt said that a national USDA-sponsored pseudorabies meeting is scheduled in Ames, Iowa to discuss the progress of the program the first week of June. She also noted that Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture is planning to conduct an area testing program.

All herds within two miles of a herd that was under quarantine within the past two years will be required to test. More than 300 producers will be contacted by phone and mail sometime next month. Testing will be on-farm or at slaughter.

The purpose of the test is to "make sure we truly have the last herds," she said, and that the state has definitely controlled PRV.

Nesselrodt noted how cooperative producers have been with the program.

"When I started in this program, I was worried that the producers would not be cooperative, would not be willing to meet with me, and would not be willing to clean up," said Nesselrodt.

"I found that all to be untrue. Most producers were very willing to work with me, were very cooperative."

Nesselrodt also noted that the local swine veterinarians have also been instrumental in helping to eradicate pseudorabies.

The USDA veterinarian believes that producers learned to work together to ensure that the state reach the final stage and be PRV-free.

"The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, USDA, and the Pennsylvania pork industry will continue to work together to reach the goal of eradicating pseudorabies from Pennsylvania by the year 2000," said Nesselrodt.

In the meantime, producers who want to find out more about the program can contact Nesselrodt at the USDA-Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture office at (717) 782-3442.

Md. Grain Producers To Meet

EDGEWATER, Md. — The 21st annual meeting of the Maryland Grain Producers Association will be held July 23 - at the Queen Anne's County 4-H Park near Centreville.

The meeting, famed in the state's agricultural community for the crab feast and chicken barbecue which traditionally concludes the event, showcases research, educational and market development projects funded with checkoff dollars by the Maryland Grain Producers Utilization Board.

In its business session, prominent speakers focus on the major issues confronting grain producers and their industry. John Phipps, a well respected Illinois grain farmer, will add a note of humor as he provides insight on some key issues facing American farmers.

Delegate Ronald Guns, House Environmental Matters Committee chairman, will present his perspective on the recently passed Water Quality Act of 1998.

"We are pleased to have Delegate Guns join us on the 23rd to talk about the nutrient management legislation," said Jamie Jamison, chairman of the annual meeting. "He played the principal role during the session and we are very thankful for his efforts."

MGPA members also will elect directors and present their coveted "Man of the Year" award. The association currently has more than 330 members representing a broad spectrum of grain production in the state.

GOOD DEALS...AND A GOOD DEAL MORE

Are You Ready For Deregulation Of Electricity Generation?

Dennis E. Buffington
Professor of Agricultural and Biological Engineering
Penn State University

Deregulation of electricity generation means that competition is being introduced into the generation of electricity. Poultry producers will soon have the opportunity to select the company or broker from whom they purchase their generated electricity. By January 1, 1999 one third of all electricity customers (residential, commercial, and industrial) will have the opportunity to select their electricity suppliers. Two thirds of all customers will have this choice by January 1, 2000 and everybody can choose by January 1, 2001. If any of you are participating in the pilot program (about 5 % of all customers), then you already have some experiences.

One of the first changes you will experience with the deregulation of electricity generation is the format of your electricity bill. When you get your bill now, there is just one charge for your electricity. Oh yes, there may be several additional charges for fuel adjustment and taxes. But after you select your electricity supplier, then your utility bill will include separate line item charges for generation, transmission, distribution, local service, competitive transition charge (also known as stranded investment charge), fuel adjustments, and taxes.

You need to do some homework before you begin shopping for an electricity supplier. First and foremost, make sure you know how many kilowatt hours of electricity you used last month and for each month of the past year. If you are on a commercial rate and pay demand charges, then also record your demand in kilowatts for the last month and for each month of the last year. Please note that it is not sufficient to just know how much you paid for electricity during this period. If you are not sure how to gather all this information, check with your local utility company.

There are a number of questions to keep in mind when shopping for an electricity supplier. Of course, you are interested in knowing the price per kilowatt hour for the generated electricity from each supplier you are considering. Be sure to recognize that you will need to pay charges for the transmission, distribution, local service, stranded investment, and taxes IN ADDITION TO whatever price you are able to negotiate for the generated electricity.

But price isn't everything. Make sure you know whether you will need to pay any demand charges and what the demand charge is per kilowatt. Is the demand charge based on a 15-minute, 30-minute, or 60-minute interval? Is the demand charge based on your electricity use for 24 hours of each day or are some nighttime and weekend hours excluded? If you have a high demand charge for one month, will your bills in future months be affected by that one high month?

Will any suppliers offer you on-peak and off-peak rates for the generated electricity? If so, make sure you understand clearly just which hours of which days are on-peak and the hours of off-peak rates. Do these on-peak and off-peak hours apply for each month of the year or are the summer hours different than the winter hours?

Be wary of anyone offering free gifts or signing bonuses. Make sure these gifts or bonuses do not prevent you from making good business decisions on the basis of the price you will pay and the services that will be provided.

Read all the fine print of the contract that you commit yourself to for a particular supplier. What is the penalty (if any) if you want to cancel the contract? What is the minimum term of the contract? Since there are so many uncertainties at this time, I am recommending that contract periods should not exceed 12 months.

It is especially important for you to know if you are negotiating for interruptible or non-interruptible electricity. If a supplier offers you a really cheap rate for electricity, my guess is that the rate applies to an interruptible supply of electricity. If you have an interruptible supply, then the supplier can interrupt the electrical service to your meter so that other customers may be served. You may want to consider interruptible supply if you have a stand-by generator of sufficient capacity to provide 100% of the power you need to operate your poultry farm.

There are many additional questions that you need to consider. Do you want two bills for electricity each month (one for generation and one for everything else) or one combined bill? Will there be minimum monthly charges or service charges involved? Will you need to pay for a special meter if one is required? Can your contract for generated electricity be renewed automatically or will it be subject to renegotiation?

Additional information about the deregulation of electricity generation is readily available from your local utility company, Penn State's Agricultural and Biological Engineering Department, Pennsylvania Utility Commission(PUC), trade journals, and the popular press. Up-to-date information is available on the Web at Penn State's site (http://www.age.psu.edu/dept/extension/deregulation) and at PUC's site (http://puc.paonline.com)

Poultry producers, just like any other customers of electricity, are interested in lowering their monthly bills for electricity and other forms of energy such as propane and natural gas. The surest way to lower your bills is to use less energy. However, be sure that you don't restrict your energy use to such an extent that you suffer from increased bird mortality or reduced egg production or other negative consequences. Your objective needs to be to use the "right amount" of energy in order to increase your profitability and cash flow.

You need to start now to prepare for shopping for electricity suppliers. Those poultry producers who do their homework and do a good job of selecting electricity suppliers can probably save 10-15% in their electricity bills. Those producers who ignore deregulation of electricity generation until the last minute may lose 10-15% or more. Happy shopping!

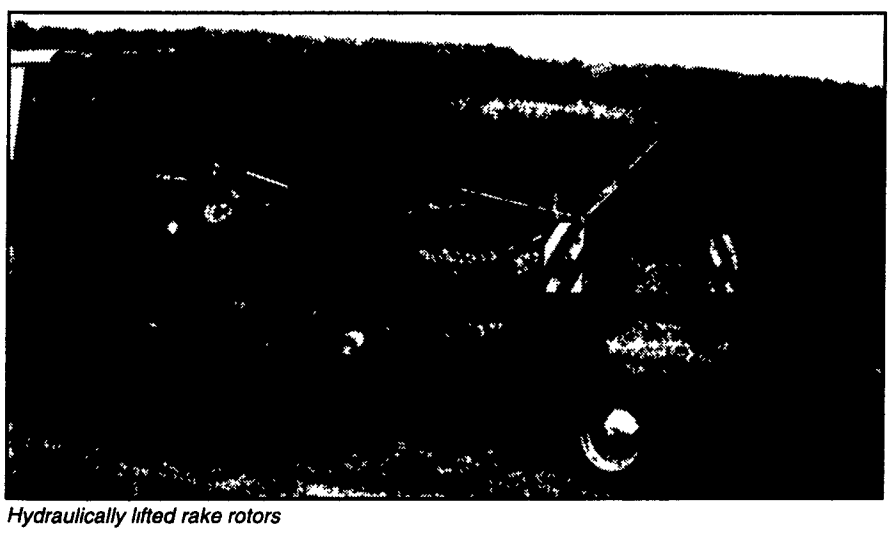
VICON ROTARY RAKE



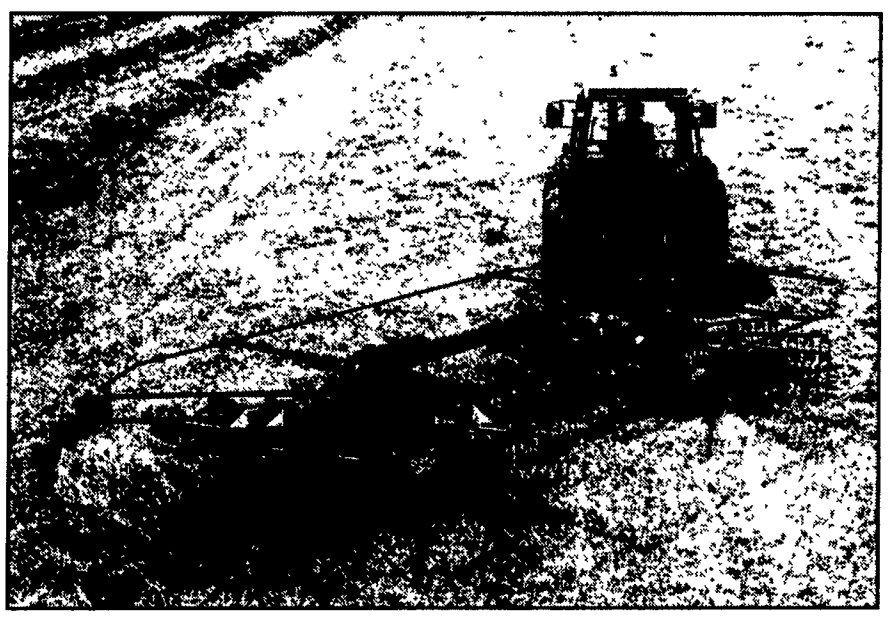
Hydraulically lifted rake rotors

VICON 722

CENTRAL SWATH, IDEAL FOR RAPID FORAGE HARVESTING

In this versatile range of rotary rakes the dual rotor rake with central output takes up a leading position. With the large working width and the compact swath formation, these new rotary rakes are geared for the ever increasing capacity of forage harvesting machines.

The rotors of the Vicon 632 and the Vicon 722 can be lifted hydraulically for turning at the headland, driving across swaths or putting the machine into transport position.



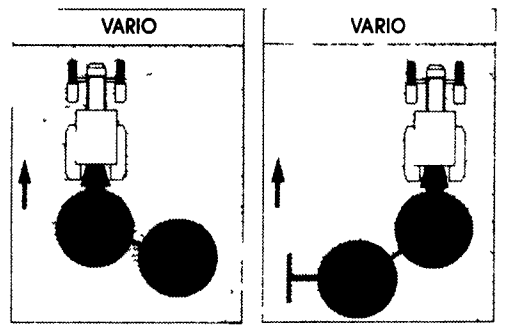
VICON 812 VARIO

The Vicon 812 Vario is a dual trailed rake with side delivery. In its trailed version the Vario is also suitable for lighter tractors.

The machine features a hydraulic lifting device for transport or lifting at the headland

The hydraulic control of the rear rotor makes it possible to let the rotors run diagonally to the left or to the right behind each other to make one or two swaths.

Rakes up to 43'.



2x single swathing (2 rotors = 1 swath)

Manage Tobacco To Prevent Blue Mold

ROBERT J. ANDERSON
Lancaster Co. Extension Agent, Agronomy

Blue mold has been on a steady increase in the U. S. since 1990.

This increase is due to several reasons. First, long periods of favorable weather. Second, a change in the fungus which made it resistant to the major controlling fungicide used. Third, commercial production and transportation of transplants. Fourth, poorly equipped sprayers making the application of non systematic fungicides less effective.

The National Blue Mold Forecasting Center at the North Carolina State University on May 20, listed blue mold active in Florida, Georgia, Cuba, Texas, Kentucky, and Tennessee. Two days earlier, they reported that "laboratory tests conducted thus far indicate the fungus involved is highly resistant to metalaxyl (Ridomil), but highly sensitive to dimethomorph (a component in Acrobat MZ)."

Blue mold (BM) generally moves into Pennsylvania from Kentucky and Tennessee. Pennsylvania growers should begin managing their tobacco crop to prevent blue mold. At this time of the year, tobacco beds and greenhouses are the most vulnerable because the offer the best environmental conditions for BM to survive and multiply.

Plants should be kept dry as much of the time as possible. Apply fungicides on a regular basis, especially when new growth appears or after watering has washed fungicide off the plants. Rotate fungicides if possible to help prevent resistance development.

To protect the industry, a community effort by all tobacco growers is essential. Once BM gets a foothold in one tobacco bed, greenhouse or field, it produces spores and spreads to neighboring fields.

Our ability to control this devastating disease, according to Dr. William Nesmith, North Carolina State University, "will be dependent upon the tobacco industry operating in a community and regional effort for the benefit of all, rather than growers operating independently."

For a complete copy of the 1998 Blue Mold Control Plan, contact the Lancaster County Extension Office and watch newspapers for Blue Mold Condition Updates.

Sweeten Your Menu With Strawberries

Fresh, plump strawberries are ready for picking.

Select fully ripe red-colored berries with intact green caps because white or pale berries do not become sweeter after they are picked and should not be purchased.

Always remove bruised, rotted, or molded berries before storing.

Strawberries should be refrigerated immediately after purchasing.

Never rinse berries or remove the caps before storing. Removing the cap early can reduce flavor, texture, and nutrient quality.

Strawberries can only be stored for a couple days in the refrigerator. If held longer than this, a gray mold may develop.

For optimal refrigeration, place berries no more than two berries deep in a shallow container or tray covered with waxed paper or plastic wrap.

Just prior to serving, remove caps and gently wash berries with cool water.

Proceed according to recipe.

STRAWBERRY LEMON SQUARES

Crust:
1½ cups zwieback crumbs
⅓ cup butter, melted
½ cup finely chopped nuts
½ cup flaked coconut
2 tablespoons sugar

Filling:
2 packages frozen sliced strawberries in syrup
3 envelopes unflavored gelatin
3 cartons (8-ounces each) lemon flavored yogurt
½ cup honey
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup whipping cream, whipped
½ teaspoon almond extract
Lemon slices, if desired
Fresh whole strawberries, if desired
Fresh mint, if desired

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. For crust, combine all ingredients until well blended. Press onto bottom and part way up sides of a 2-quart rectangular baking dish. Bake until golden brown, 8 to 10 minutes. Cool completely on wire rack. For filling, drain strawberries, reserving 1 cup syrup; set strawberries aside. Soften gelatin in syrup in small saucepan. Heat over low heat, stirring constantly, until dissolved; cool. Place strawberries, yogurt, honey, and salt in blender container; cover. Blend until fruit is pureed. Blend in gelatin mixture. Place mixture in large mixing bowl. Chill until slightly thickened. Beat in whipped cream and almond extract. Pour into cooled crust. Chill several hours or overnight until firm. Cut into squares. Garnish each serving with a piece of lemon, whole strawberry, and sprig of mint. 12 servings.

Strawberries pair well with cottage cheese, yogurt, cream, milk, cream cheese, and other dairy products.

Fresh strawberries are ready for picking. First pickings were especially flavorful due to the dry weather the week before picking.

Last Chance To Enter Dairy Recipe Drawing

In celebration of June Dairy Month, it's time to enter Lancaster Farming's annual Dairy Recipe Drawing.

To enter the drawing, select your favorite recipe, which must include a substantial amount of at least one dairy product. Dairy ingredients include milk, cream, sour cream, whipped cream, butter, yogurt, buttermilk, dry milk, ice cream, and any hard and soft cheeses. Please check your recipe carefully. Margarine and non-dairy substitutes such as whipped topping do not qualify as dairy products.

Dairy recipes are needed for appetizers, soups, breads, entrees, vegetables, desserts, beverages, snacks, and salads.

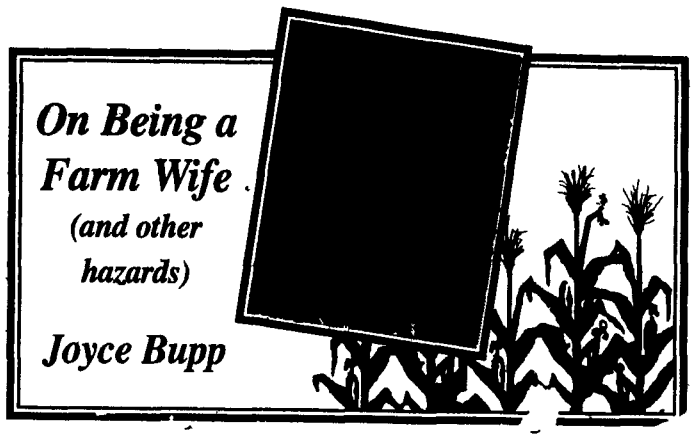
Clearly print or type your recipe. Be sure to give accurate measurements, temperatures, times, and sizes of baking dishes to use. We reserve the right to disqualify entries if these guidelines are not followed.

The difference between this contest and the weekly recipes is that you are asked to include a few paragraphs about yourself and your family. Although it is not required, a photograph of your family adds a wonderful touch to accompany the printed submission. Photos will be returned it you write your name and address on the back of the photo.

Only one entry per family allowed. This contest is for adults, not children. Send your recipe, photo, and accompanying information with your complete address to Lou Ann Good, Lancaster Farming Cow Mania Drawing, P.O. Box 609, 1 E. Main St., Ephrata, PA 17522. If we do not have your complete address, we can not mail your prize.

Send entries immediately. Envelopes must be postmarked by June 1 to be eligible for the drawing.

Winners will be selected through a drawing and will be sent a prize. A list of the winners will be printed in the June 27th issue.



Scared. Shivering. Gasping for breath. Probably hurting a little.

This newborn heifer (female) calf was not in the best shape.

Mama stood mere feet away. Also hurting. Confused. Anxiously concerned over her baby.

She was in the process of "cleaning," following calving, passing from her body the placenta and remaining tissues which had nurtured this now cold and damp new life in a far corner of the pasture.

Darkness was at hand this late May evening, a brisk breeze chasing off the heat and humidity of the brilliant day. My lightweight T-shirt and shorts, while appropriate earlier, would have been more comfortable with an added sweatshirt-layer.

Laying aside a chunk of fresh, soft grass for the first-time mother, I kept one eye on the calf and the other on the nervous mother. The hay was both to help fill the cow's "interior" as well as offer a distraction while this intensive-care-candidate calf got its vital first meal of warm colostrum milk.

Delivery of a calf creates a void inside the cow, formerly filled by an 80-100 lb. infant. Until the cow's interior can shrink back down to normal size, the abomasum, one of her four stomachs, may slide out of place and block her digestive system. Veterinary term is a "displaced abomasum," often shortened to "D.A." or in more layman language, "twisted stomach."

"We have a twist," is not a favorite phrase on a dairy farm. While a simple twisted stomach is remedied with fairly routine surgery, there is added vet and antibiotic costs, possible long-term complications to the cow, and the occasional, but inevitable, lost animal.

A "twist" was not my main concern initially with this newly-fresh young cow, but keeping her beautiful little baby alive was. The calving had been a difficult one and the calf had apparently swallowed a lot of fluids. Its face and throat seemed to be swelled. Her nose was cold, she was shivering, and the breeze was picking up in speed and cooling down in temperature by the minute.

She needed the bottle I had in hand of warm colostrum, extra rich stuff saved and frozen from the calving a few weeks before of a veteran of the milking string. Older cows generally produce more disease-resistant-antibodies in their post-calving milk than do younger, new mothers. We keep some frozen at all times for such occasions.

But the swelling was such that the calf's mouth had to be pried open to insert the nipple of the bottle. She was still to weak to suckle. And her struggling against the effort to help was further alarming the new mother, growing more nervous by the second, making little mooing sounds of concern, and still pushing to complete the afterbirth delivery. No one was around; the men were all back in the field, working late in the haylage harvest. Was this a safe place to be?

This one would have to be left to Bigger Hands. I trudged back into the office in the semi-darkness, hit the patch of oil slick that (we later discovered) came from an untightened filter on the milking system vacuum pump, slid across the concrete floor and crashed into the wall.

It was time to call it quits.

Exiting the barn, I stumbled into The Farmer. The field crew was also calling it quits, after more than a week of extra-long hours of planting corn and chopping several hundred tons of silage toward refilling our bare-cupboard feed supplies. Just the night before, The Farmer had round baled until midnight, then lamented the next day that he had missed a field in the dark.

Sometimes, you just have to call it quits. To temporarily walk away. To go get some rest. It was time.

Next morning, the baby was alive and hungry, though she still had some difficulty swallowing. Mama Cow was fully rested and full of spunk. Haylage harvest resumed. The Farmer departed to round bale the field missed at midnight.

And I thanked the Bigger Hands for keeping an eye on it all.

Featured Recipe

The month of May has been designated "Older Americans Month." But don't waste your time looking on front porches for white-haired folks in rocking chairs to honor. Today's "older Americans" will more likely be found rediscovering all the activities they enjoyed before they filled their nest. Few "older Americans" who are taking advantage of early retirement options are acting tired. Most are busy volunteering, starting new careers, or taking up new hobbies. However, not many "older Americans" are choosing to spend new-found extra time in the kitchen.

"Life is too short to spend more time in the kitchen than you really want to," says registered dietitian Brenda Ponichtera, author of "Quick & Healthy Recipes and Ideas" and "Quick & Healthy Volume II" (ScaleDown Publishing, Inc., 1519 Hermits Way, The Dalles, Oregon 97058, $16.95 each, comb-bound.) "This is a time in life to be spontaneous and unscheduled but also a time when a healthy diet is extremely important." Whether you have special dietary considerations (reducing salt content, trimming fat grams, watching diabetic exchanges, etc.) or just want to eat better so you can stay active, Ponichtera's cookbooks offer hundreds of terrific quick and healthy meal ideas.

Here is a recipe from the cookbook.

Mandarin Yogurt Delight

The orange color makes this an attractive dessert. Serve in sherbet dishes with a dollop of light whipped topping. This also works well as a fruit salad.

1 package (0.3 ox.) sugar-free orange-flavored gelatin
¾ cup boiling water
8 ounces nonfat vanilla yogurt (sweetened with artificial sweetener)
1 can (11 oz.) mandarin oranges, drained

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Add yogurt and stir until smooth. Chill until the consistency of egg whites, about 20 minutes. Add drained fruit. Spoon into sherbet dishes and refrigerate until set.

KIDS AND MOWERS

Can mowing your lawn be hazardous to your children's health? Several recent lawn mower accidents involving children under the age of 5, occurred in York County. They resulted in loss of limbs, fingers, toes or injured the eyes.

The whirling metal blade below the mower deck contributes to 70 percent of all lawn mower accidents. A person can come in contact with the blade by slipping under the mower deck, or reaching into the discharge chute before the blade stops. Lawn mower blades typically turn at 3600 revolutions per minute, or 60 revolutions per second. Since most blades have two ends and rotate at 200 mph, an object in line with the blade for only one second may be struck as many as 120 times. The intensity of the damage from a blade rotating under these conditions is equivalent to a 1.2 pound missile traveling at 232 miles per hour. Bones coming in contact with the mower are typically crushed and the wound filled with dirt and grass, making it difficult for a surgeon to repair.

Lawn mowers often hurl objects (stones, sticks, etc.) from under the mower deck especially when the lawn is high. Debris launched from the discharge chute could puncture the skin or eyes resulting in serious injury.

Recent design changes to lawn mowers have reduced but not eliminated the danger. Improved guards have helped as well as the 'deadman brake' which stops the blade in three seconds or less after the operator lets go of the push handle or gets off the seat of a riding mower. Some operators see these safety devices as a nuisance, and by-pass the device using a wire or tape. Never remove the safety device on a lawn mower.

To reduce the hazards associated with mowing the lawn, review the proper use and operation of the mower. Clear the area under the deck of sticks, stones and other debris. Keep children out of the area you plan to mow, children under 5 years old and pets are the most accident victims. Wear sturdy footwear such as work shoes or steel work boots (never wear sandals, sneakers or bare feet). Wear close fitting slack and shirts to avoid entanglement under the mower. Make sure all guards, deflectors, and safety devices are in place and in working order. Check the fuel level before starting. Do not add fuel when the engine is hot.

While mowing your lawn, wear eye protection, pay careful attention to children playing in the area, move slowly over rough terrain, direct the discharge chute away from cars, buildings, and people, look ahead of the mowing path for large debris, and look before backing up.

In addition do not operate a mower on a grade steeper than 15 degrees (2.5 ft. rise per 10 ft. run), operating riding mowers up and down slopes, operate walk behind mowers across slopes, never attempt to adjust cutting height while the mower is running, never operate on wet grass, and never pull a mower up grade while running (you might slip under the mower.)

If a discharge chute becomes clogged, shut off the engine and wait for the blade to stop completely before unclogging the chute. When servicing the mower deck or blade, be certain that the mower is turned off, and the spark plug wire is disconnected to prevent accidental starting.

Stake Tomatoes On These Methods

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Almost every gardener, from Martha Stewart to the fictional Don Corleone, has grown tomatoes. The trick to growing them effectively, according to a Penn State gardening specialist, is proper care and preparation.

Plant tomatoes by Memorial Day. If temperatures dip to frost levels after planting, cover the tomato plants with paper or cloth coverings. Plastic covers will cause freezing if the plastic touches the plant.

Here are some tomato growth tips:

• Planting. Tomato plants should be planted in early evening, to reduce stress and heat injury from the sun. Tomatoes need cool, moist conditions after transplanting. Set the plant into the ground up to the first set of leaves so the roots will be more stable.

• Stakes or cages. Stake or cage the plants as you are planting them. If you wait to stake the plant, you'll end up disturbing or breaking parts of the plant.

• Water immediately. Gardeners should use a water-soluble starter solution fertilizer at half the recommended rate. He suggests using about a pint of liquid per plant for best results.

• Fertilizers. High-phosphorus fertilizer should be used. High phosphorus means the middle number on the formula is at least three to four times the other two numbers, such at 12-48-12 or 10-55-10.

• More watering. Tomato plants should be watered every week to 10 days, if it has not rained in that time. Gardeners should water so the soil is moist from six to 10 inches deep. Light spray sprinklers will take about an hour to soak the soil thoroughly. If you use a hose-end sprayer or rose-fan sprinkler, it will take about 10 to 15 minutes of watering. About the time you're running out of patience, that's when the plant has had enough water."

• Tying. Two weeks after planting, the stems should be tied to the stake with soft twine, strips of cloth or yarn.

• Add nutrients. Because Pennsylvania has calcium-rich soils, gardeners should add magnesium to the soil. Tomatoes require high amounts of magnesium, which can be added by applying high-magnesium limestone, or the even more magnesium-rich dolomitic limestone.

The bottom leaves of the plant will turn yellow if it needs magnesium. When the plant is in a weakened state, Early Blight, a disease that attacks tomato plants, can develop and hurt the tomato crop.

• Insect and disease control. Gardeners can control pests in small gardens by breaking off leaves with evidence of disease of insects. Seal the affected leaves in plastic bags and throw them away. If conditions are too far gone, spray.

About 40 days after the flowering or 65 to 80 days after transplanting, the first tomatoes should appear. For the best flavor and aroma, gardeners should wait for the tomato to reach full color before picking. The tomato should be slightly firm, not mushy.

Any tomato showing even a trace of color will ripen as long as they aren't refrigerated. How long it takes to ripen depends on size, variety and other factors.

The plants will continue to produce tomatoes until the first frost. If you know the frost is coming, go out and pick everything. Those showing color will ripen and the green ones can be fried, or cooked into relish.

The following tomato varieties are known for superior taste and aroma:

• First Lady VFNTAs (The VFNTAs means this variety is resistant to Verticullum, Fusarium Wilt, Nematodes, Tobacco Mosaid Virus and Alternaria Stem Canker.)

• Big Beef VFNTAsL. (The L means this variety is resistant to Gray Leaf Spot.)

• Be'ter Boy VFN.

• Delicious. A beefsteak type tomato with excellent flavor and aroma.

Cherry Tomatoes:

• Super Sweet 100 VF

• Sun Gold F. A yellow tomato variety.

Husky Gold VF is recommended for gardeners growing in small patches near patios or in containers. The tomato is yellow and averages about 2 inches in diameter. The plant is compact with a very sturdy central stalk, so it doesn't require staking.

Age Does Not Idle The Industrious Hook

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

WOLMELSDORF (Berks Co.) — For the first time since he started farming, McCullough Hook did not do the barnwork on his birthday.

"They wouldn't let me do it," the 85-year-old Hook said of the 38 family members who came to celebrate his birthday on May 24.

Despite their protests, his children couldn't prevent Hook from baking a ham and 12 quarts of macaroni and cheese for the celebration.

The industrious Hook is determined that age will not idle him. He's out every day managing his three farms and planting corn. Under his tutelage, two of his grandchildren milk 80 cows. But Hook said, "I do the managing and pay the bills."

Last year he put up a new silo and a feed room with an automatic mixer.

Some years ago, Hook built a home on a ledge that enables him to see for miles around and keep a sharp lookout on his dairy farm in the hollow.

"It's good to get out in the fields after sitting up here all winter," Hook said recently at the end of a hot day.

When asked what he attributes his unusual energy to as an 85-year-old, Hook answered, "Faith in God and hard work."

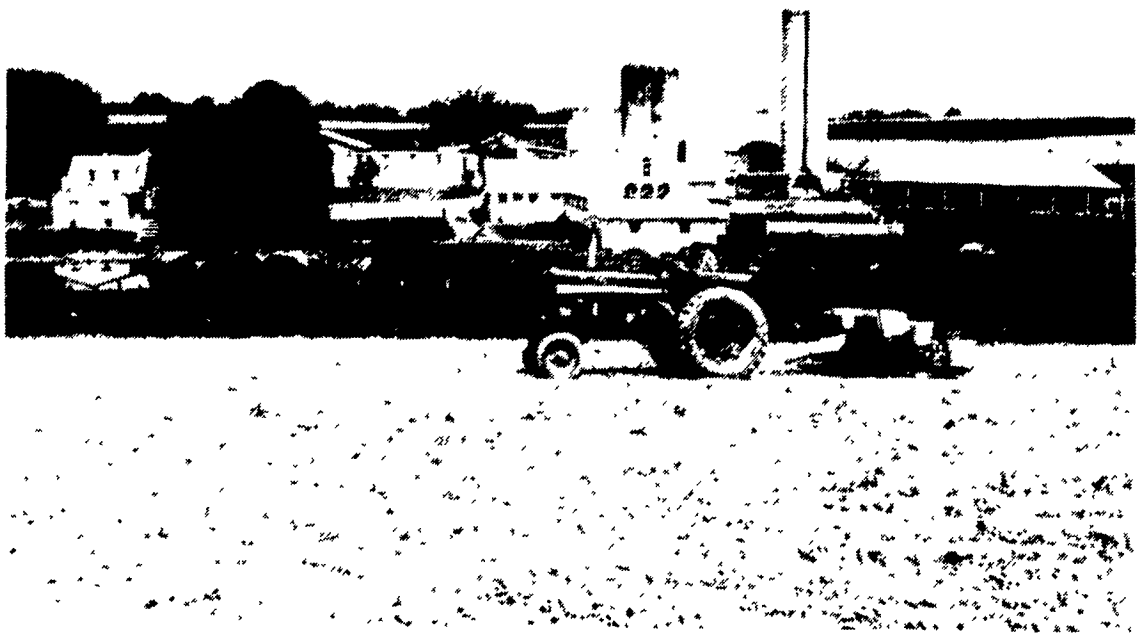
His father died when he was 13 years old. As the oldest child, Hook took over farming responsibilities to enable his mother to keep together the family that included an 8-year-old sister, a 2½-year-old brother, and a 6-week-old baby.

He used three horses and a walking plow while his mother used three horses and a riding plow to farm the land.

"My mother told me that hard work won't kill anybody," Hook said. It's a saying that he is prone to repeat as he finds much satisfaction in hard work.

Hook married a city girl who learned to "outmilk me," he said of the time when cows were milked by hand.

As time went on, the Hooks had five children, acquired seven farms, and were recognized for progressive conservation practices.



Although he is 85 years old, McCullough Hook has no intention of taking it easy. He's out in the fields plowing and planting on his Wolmelsdorf farm.

In his lifetime McCullough Hook has received numerous awards for outstanding farming practices. A former Master Farmer, Hook continues to receive press coverage. He holds an award he received recently from Berks County Ag Land Preservation for his long-term commitment to agriculture.

"I was the first guy in the area in 1940 to lay the farm in contour strips," Hook said. He was named a Master Farmer by Pennsylvania Farmer Magazine.

Despite his age, awards keep coming. This month Hook received an award from Berks County Ag Land Preservation for his long-term commitment to agriculture.

Although Hook became a well-lauded farmer, his life was not without pain. He nursed both his mother and wife through years of Alzheimer's and Parkinson's diseases. His oldest son, who farmed with him, died of cancer in 1992. His son's wife Loretta Hook continued to work on the dairy farm, but in 1995, a 230-pound doe ran through the car's windshield and killed her. That was the year Hook's wife also died.

Hook himself has had some heart problems and a bout with cancer.

"My knees give me a little problem, and I get stiff if I don't keep active," Hook said.

"I still drive the car but not in the city," Hook said. He added somewhat abashedly, "I can't back machinery like I used to. I'm starting to go back, I can tell."

Nonetheless, Hook finds great delight in continuing to open his farm to the Berks County School District. His carefully tallied records show that more than 25,000 children have visited his farm over the years.

His favorite question asked by a student is "Which cow gives the chocolate milk?"

An annual outing on the farm is held by Hook's church.

"We have about 210 children coming on one day. Pastor Philip Smith goes along on every hay ride to make sure the kids behave," Hook said of the hay rides that take about 25 minutes each.

Never one to sleep more than three or four hours at night, Hook often cooks and bakes from 10 p.m. to the early hours of the morning.

"It's lonesome when you're all alone, and I do my best baking after 10 p.m.," Hook said.

He baked 1,200 Christmas cookies to give to neighbors and carolers who stopped by. He also served chocolate milk with the cookies.

He baked 140 shoofly pies last year that he gives to his family members, which includes 12 grandchildren and two great grandchildren, and friends.

"Some of my pies went to Florida, Maine, and Virginia," he said. "They say my pies are better than mail-order pies."

Hook said that the secret to making great-tasting shoofly pies is to add vanilla and lemon juice.

He also makes pies and fruit salad for bed fast friends. The week of this interview, he made 60 quarts of vegetable soup, which he freezes and gives to those who drop by to see him.

Last year he canned 300 jars of produce, which included 84 quarts of peaches and 68 of tomatoes.

Hook has clipped and tried hundreds of recipes from Lancaster Farming newspapers. He likes to keep experimenting with recipes to make them better. Here is one that friends request him to make for church suppers.

Baked Lima Beans For A Crowd

14 pounds dried lima beans, soaked overnight
15 medium onions, chopped
14 tablespoons dry mustard
½ pound bacon, diced
1½ stalks celery
60 ounces King Syrup
9 cups brown sugar
60 ounces catsup
Salt and pepper to taste

Cook beans until soft. Fry bacon, onion, and celery. Mix ingredients together in large baking pan. Bake one hour.

This year on the first day of mowing his grass, Hook's lawn mower flipped on top of him. Hook brushed himself off and chalked the mishap up to the uneveness of the ditch where he was mowing.

More than 25,000 students have toured the Hook farms according to records. Here Hook answers questions and poses with a group who just took a hay ride tour of the farm.

Homestead Notes

Ida's Notebook

by

Ida Risser

Our locust trees are white with blossoms and it reminds me that long ago this was the time that my parents allowed me to go barefooted. I still enjoy doing that, but it is embarrassing to be caught on a Sunday afternoon.

I'm a lot more conscious of the hot sun than I was years ago. When I was in my teens, I babysat some young boys who swam in the Conestoga River all day long. They were accustomed to the sun but I was not and so I got a severe sunburn. There were big blisters on my shoulders that made it difficult to wear clothes for a few days. We never even knew of sunblock lotion when I was a youngster. So, now I try to do most of my outside work in the morning. I've even bought myself a large wide brimmed straw hat. But, I must get accustomed to wearing it.

The yellow string beans that I planted the end of March did not get frozen this year and so we should have an early crop. The sugar peas are almost ready and I do enjoy the green onions that I can pull fresh from my garden.

Today, May 30, our church will celebrate its 40th birthday and one of the first ministers will return to preach. When we started to attend this church in the 1960s, we had six children to get ready for Sunday School and our youngest was only months old. It was always a big rush to get the milking done on time for church.

Now the church has grown to almost 2,000 members. And, if you regularly attend the early service, then you barely know the folks who come to the late service. But there are so many small interest groups such as "Singles Over 60," "Men's Breakfast," "Morning Prayer," "Highlites," "Renewal Circle," and "Global Outreach." Here is where you can get to know fellow members much better.

Fight BAC!™ – Four Simple Steps to Food Safety

A few months ago the Partnership for Food Safety Education, a national coalition of industry, government and consumer groups, launched a public education campaign called Fight BAC!™ that focuses on safe food handling. This educational program encourages consumers to think about food safety at each step in the food handling process – from shopping to shoring leftovers. The following are the four basic Fight BAC!™ messages that consumers need to follow to keep food safe from harmful bacteria:

• Clean: Wash hands and surfaces often.

Bacteria can spread throughout the kitchen and get onto cutting boards, utensils, sponges, and counter tops. Wash hands, utensils and surfaces with hot soapy water before and after food preparation, and especially after preparing meat, poultry, eggs or seafood to protect adequately against bacteria. Hand washing is also critical after using the bathroom, changing diapers and handling pets. Using a disinfectant cleaner of a mixture of bleach and water on surfaces and antibacterial soap on hands can provide some added protection.

• Separate: Don't cross-contaminate.

Cross-contamination is the scientific word for how bacteria can be spread from one food product to another. This is especially true when handling raw-meat, poultry and seafood, so keep these foods and their juices away from ready-to-eat foods. Separate these food products while shopping and in the refrigerator.

Never place cooked food on a plate which previously held raw meat, poultry, and seafood. The raw juices will contaminate the cooked products with bacteria.

Use plastic or other non-porous cutting boards, because of their cleanability. If possible use a different cutting board for raw products. These boards should be run through the dishwasher—or washed in hot soapy water— after using and especially after they come in contact with raw meat, poultry and seafood.

• Cook: Cook to proper temperatures.

Food safety experts agree that foods are properly cooked when they are heated for a long enough time at at a high enough temperature to kill the harmful bacteria that cause foodborne illnesses. Use a clean thermometer, which measures the internal temperature of cooked foods, to make sure meat, poultry, casseroles and other foods are cooked all the way through. Use the following cooking tips to ensure doneness:

• Cook roasts and steaks to at least 145°F. Whole poultry should be cooked to 180°F for doneness.

• Cook ground beef, where bacteria can spread during processing, to at least 160°F. Eating undercooked, pink ground beef has been linked to a higher risk of illness. If a thermometer is not available, do not eat ground beef that is still pink.

• Cook eggs until both the yolk and white are firm. Don't use recipes in which eggs remain raw or only partially cooked.

• Fish should be opaque and flake easily with a fork.

• When cooking in a microwave oven, make sure there are no cold spots in food where bacteria can survive. For best results, cover food, stir and rotate for even cooking. If there is no turntable, rotate the dish by hand once or twice during cooking.

• Bring sauces, soups, and gravy to a boil when reheating. Heat other leftovers thoroughly to at least 165°F.

• Chill: Refrigerate promptly. Refrigerate foods quickly because cold temperatures keep harmful bacteria from growing and multiplying. Set your refrigerator no higher than 40°F and the freezer unit at 0°F. Check these temperatures occasionally with an appliance thermometer. Use the following guidelines to properly refrigerate foods:

• Refrigerate or freeze perishables, prepared food and leftovers within two hours or sooner.

• Never defrost food at room temperature. Thaw food in the refrigerator, under cold running water or in the microwave. Marinate foods in the refrigera tor.

• Divide large amounts of leftovers into small, shallow containers for quick cooling in the refrigerator.

• Don't pack the refrigerator. Cool air must circulate to keep food safe.

Remember bacteria cause foodborne illness and are our invisible enemies. Use the four powerful weapons listed above to make your meals and snacks as safe as possible. So in other words - Fight BAC!™

Turtles, Other Water Creatures Under Care Of Twin Valley Aquaculture Students

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

ELVERSON (Chester Co.) — Legend has it that Stumpy the painted turtle put up a gallant fight — too bad, however, because he lost his right arm along the way.

Long ago, in a pond not so far away, Twin Valley High School students rescued Stumpy, now going on 14 (old for a turtle), from the fight with a snapping turtle.

The right-armless but dashing turtle has taken it well over the years — once the students can finally scrub the algae off his protective shell to find his true age.

Stumpy, like many one-time denizens of the somewhat shallow waters of the nearby Twin Valley Pond, as students call it, has a new life in a tank, along with other turtles that are cared for at the high school, which towers up in the hill of the valley.

Stumpy the turtle tries to keep up with other inhabitants, including a red-eared slider, snapping, and map turtles in the tank.

Stumpy the painted turtle has yellow, naturally colored stripes along his appendages. But according to Amy Kline, a 10th grader at Twin Valley, other painted turtles can exhibit red or orange colorings.

Jeff McCoy, 12th grader, helped to load up a pickup truck filled with an ice drum with about 30-50 catfish, being transported to market. Here he checks out the tilapia in the raceways.

In the 1,500-gallon pool, before it was drained to make way for renovations, about 80 tilapia made their home, along with 30-50 catfish (sold to Shady Maple Supermarket in Blue Ball). The tilapia still remaining in the raceway measure about 6-8 inches long and were placed there last fall. Students holding up fish from left, Amy Barnett, 11th grade, catfish; Lee Millisock, 12th, tilapia; and Jeff McCoy, 12th grade, white catfish.

How old is Stumpy? Amy said you can tell by the rings on the shell. Each "ring" or block denotes a year in the life of the turtle. On Tuesday this week, with help from fellow aquaculture student Angela Brent, 10th grader, both used a scrub brush to take off some algae tank buildup from its outer shell. They counted the blocks — 14 to be exact — on the shell.

Students in the aquaculture and ag sciences programs at the high school use the Twin Valley Pond, near the elementary school, to capture species for use in the tanks at the facility. They have acquired tree frogs, tadpoles, newts, and salamanders, according to Angela. The pond is a Class I pond, with no fish living in it because of its lack of oxygen. fish living in it because of its lack of oxygen.

That's just one aspect to the school's aquaculture program.

According to Harold Dietrich, ag science teacher at Twin Valley, fish were raised in the 1,500 gallon indoor "pond" in the aquaculture facility at the school. The facility will be undergoing renovations in the summer. The tank was home to a variety of species, including large-mouth bass, catfish, bluegills, and tilapia, said Dietrich.

Some fish were supplied by Kurtz's Fish Hatchery in Elverson. The tilapia were "grown ourselves in tanks," said Dietrich.

The tilapia are grown for about three months in 20-gallon to 50-gallon tanks. Then they are moved to the "raceway" — a large-capacity, narrow tank that takes them to market size (some more than 12 inches long). Some can be moved to the large swimming pool and then marketed.

In the 1,500-gallon pool, before it was drained to make way for renovations, about 80 tilapia made their home, along with 30-50 catfish (sold to Shady Maple Supermarket in Blue Ball). The tilapia still remaining in the raceway measure about 6-8 inches long and were placed there last fall.

The catfish marketed to the supermarket take about two years to grow. Tilapia make a better fish to market because they can be brought to market sooner — about a year to a year and a half, according to Dietrich.

With the renovations to take place at the facility, the pool, with a 1,500-gallon capacity, will have improved temperature. Where temperatures were once kept at 65 degrees during the winter, keeping them warmer — at 70 to 80 degrees — will help mature the fish faster. New electrical lines

Farming Is More Than A Job

ELLEN NORMAN
Tioga Co. Dairy Princess

LIBERTY (Tioga County) — Farming is not just a job, but a way of life.

There is always something to do if you live on a farm. If you've ever known a farmer, you know how hard it is to get in touch with him or her. They are always out in the barn, busy in the fields, or away from human contact altogether. There is no doubt about it, a farmer's life is busy and full of hard work.

Many farmers love their jobs. They agree, however, that it is a lot of hard work.

Paul Moyer of Ty-Ly-View Farms in Roaring Branch says that the hardest part of farming is working long hours with little time off. The job can be very demanding.

Ernest Norman of Normandell Farms in Liberty said, "It's not really the hardest part of farming, but the biggest concern, is trying to make ends meet."

For all of the hard work that a farmers does, the income is excessively low. A farmer depends on his monthly milk check to keep him going, and the milk is sold before a farmer even knows how much money he will get.

If farming is so unpredictable and demanding, why do farmers choose this way of life?

"It's the only way of life I know, and it is a great way to bring up a family," says Moyer.

Bringing up a family on a farm can be very rewarding. Children learn values that may not be taught to them anywhere else. They are given an important sense of responsibility as well as incredible insight to nature and life. They may help take care of the animals or help by working in the fields. Sometimes the family helps keep track of the bills.

Paul Moyer, dairy farmer in Liberty, holds the halter of Tin-D-Champ Dottie Donna while talking with Tioga County Dairy Princess Ellen Norman about the future of farming. Moyer farms with his parents near Roaring Branch.

Moyer said that his favorite part of farming is watching and experiencing the birth of a new calf. "It is special," he exclaimed.

Norman likes being his own boss.

"I got into farming because the family needed help, and I love working with nature and watching things grow," he said. "Working on a farm gives a farmer first-hand experience in working with nature. This is a rewarding feeling that is hard to find anywhere else."

Norman is concerned about the future of the dairy industry. "It is too expensive for young people to start farming without financial help," he said.

Summer Recipe Idea

For one year Ellen Norman has been actively promoting the dairy industry in Tioga County with the help of her sister, a dairy maid. The sisters are the daughters of Ernest and Dorothy Norman and have two other sisters and one brother. Ellen plans to attend Bloomsburg University in the fall, majoring in communication studies.

LIBERTY (Tioga Co.) — It will soon be summer and the time for family reunions and picnics. Emily Norman, Tioga County Dairy Maid, said, "I know that you all will be thinking: 'What can I make that everyone will love?'"

She things she has just the right recipe for you. "It is both delicious and attractive. It is fairly simple to make plus it contains real dairy products—which we all know we need in our diets."

Allergies And Food Intolerances Not As Common As Believed

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — One out of three people believes he or she has a food allergy, yet only about one percent of adults suffer from a true food allergy," said Brenda Daelhousen.

She is a registered dietitian who led a workshop on food allergies and food intolerance at the Penn State Berks Extension office last week.

Food allergies can be life threatening. The most severe type of food allergy reaction is called anaphylaxis, a reaction that can occur within moments after eating the offending food, and typically involves several parts of the body. Symptoms may include hives, difficulty breathing, and loss of consciousness. Without immediate medical attention, death may occur.

Foods that are more prone to cause anaphylaxis in some people are peanuts, nuts, eggs, and shellfish.

Daelhousen said that it is important to have symptoms evaluated and diagnosed by a board-certified allergist. Diagnosis is difficult. The only way to manage a true allergy is to eliminate the food from the diet. In that case, a registered dietitian is often needed to help manage a diet in order to ensure adequate nutrition.

Fortunately, most food allergies are not life threatening, but they may cause nasal congestion, asthma, nausea, diarrhea, and gas.

Even if those symptoms are evident, it doesn't prove you have a food allergy. Digestive and other physical conditions can mimic food allergy symptoms. An enzyme deficiency, such as when the body cannot digest lactose (a milk sugar) often produces symptoms of gas, cramps, and bloating, but this is not an allergy but a food intolerance.

Food intolerances are rarely life threatening. Special diets may be required.

Individuals allergic to gluten need to avoid all foods containing wheat, barley, rye, and oats.

Celiac diseas is a genetic disorder in which the body cannot tolerate gliadin, the protein component of the gluten in wheat, barley, rye, and oats.

It is important to identify what grain is used when modified food starch is listed as an ingredient on the label.

Food additives are rarely linked with food intolerance reactions. In a few cases, a preservative sulfite is known to be dangerous for severe asthmatics.

Many people who believe they are allergic to dairy products are not.

That doesn't mean they don't have any unpleasant symptoms. They may be lactose intolerant.

"Lactose intolerance is caused by an inability to properly digest the natural sugar lactose, which is found in milk and milk products," said Daelhousen.

Although about one in four Americans suffer some degree of lactose intolerance, there are a lot of people who believe they are intolerant to dairy products who are not.

Studies show that most lactose intolerant individuals can consume small servings of dairy products without experiencing discomfort.

The following is suggested.

- Drink milk in servings of one cup or less.
- Try hard cheeses that are low in lactose, like cheddar.
- Drink milk with a meal or with other foods.
- Try yogurt with active cultures.

Substitute lactose-reduced dairy products, such as nonfat, low-fat, and calcium-fortified milk, cottage cheese, yogurt, and ice cream, for regular dairy products.

- Take lactase enzyme tablets before eating or with dairy products.
- Add lactase enzyme drops to regular milk.

Children with one allergic parent have about twice the risk of developing food allergy than children without allergic parents. If both parents are allergic, a child is about four times more likely to develop a food allergy than if neither parent is allergic.

Many children with food allergies also show sensitivities to inhaled allergens such as dust, cat and pollen or may develop allergies later in life. In addition, adults who develop food allergies often have histories of respiratory allergies such as allergic nasal symptoms or asthma.

Some of the following organizations can provide additional information on food allergies.

- The Food Allergy Network, 10400 Eaton Place, Suite 107, Fairfax, VA 22030-2208.
- The American Dietetic Associaiton, 216 W. Jackson Boulevard, Suite 800, Chicago, IL 60606.
- National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Disease, Building 31, 7A-50, 31 Center Drive, MSC 2520, Bethesda, MD 20892-2520.

The Southeast Dairy Association provides these recipes for those with lactose intolerance. Even if you do not have a food intolerance, you can enjoy these recipes.

Teas, Wreaths, Herbs, Memory Loss

DAUPHIN (Dauphin Co.) — Teas, wreaths, herbs and memory loss will be some of the topics at Penn State Cooperative Extension's Summer Awareness Day to be held on Tuesday, June 16 from 9:00 a.m. - 3:00 p.m. at the Ag and Natural Resources Center, Dauphin. The all-day event will feature a lineup of local and national experts discussing topics of importance to today's living, plus a special luncheon. Country Market Nursery will be giving away door prizes and centerpieces.

Ellen Spector Platt, author of "The Ultimate Wreath Book" and noted lecturer at the 1998 International Flower Show at Disney World's Epcot Center, will be presenting "Living Wreaths; Useful and Beautiful." That's right - fresh, living, breathing botanical masterpieces, ideal for hanging on the summer patio, growing on a table top, or surrounding the punch bowl at your next summer party. Ellen will show you how to make wreaths that are both decorative and useful using living plants from your own gardens.

Katy Olinger has a rich history in the business of tea, having operated her own tea room in Millersburg for many years. Katy is an accomplished cook, gardener, and expert on mint and she will share her tips on how to grow, use, and dry this marvelous herd. You won't want to miss her program "Just a Touch of Mint."

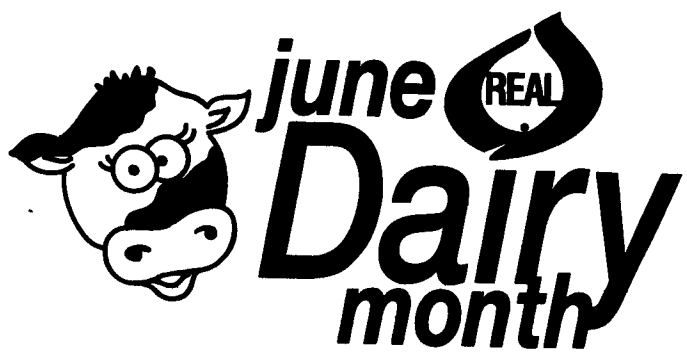
Think you can't do stirfry? Then sit back and enjoy while David Tang, Penn State Extension 4-H Agent and family chef, presents "Dad Does Healthy Working." Here is one father who creates some very delicious dishes using fresh vegetables and herbs. With an easy recipe and a few simple techniques, even a novice can turn out these healthy, nutritious meals.

Kathy Wolfe, local Master Gardener, worked at the National Herb Garden in Washington, DC. and over the years has gathered stacks of facts and folklore on the plants we call herbs. Before the days of Aspirin, Revlon and the Rite-Aid pharmacy, women depended on herbs to cure illnesses, color fabrics, and care for themselves, their families and their homes. In "Herbs Your Mother Knew," Kathy presents an entertaining look at the magical, flavorful and aromatic world of plants that have interested people all over the world for thousands of years.

Thanks for the memories. Do you have a favorite tea cup, saucer, plate or other antique that has a special memory? If so, bring it along. You will have an opportunity to talk about your treasure and share its interesting history. There will be a display table for the pieces. You might want to bring an open box to showcase your treasure.

Memory loss and Alzheimer's affects not only the patient, but the entire family. What can we do if it strikes our family? And how do we cope with this disease? In "Alzheimer's: Caring for the Patient and Caregiver", Dr. Emily Matlin, Neurologist, will explore helpful techniques in dealing with this debilitating disease.

Cost for the day which includes luncheon, is $15 per person. Registration deadline is June 5. Don't delay. You won't want to miss this fun-filled, exciting day. The Ag & Natural Resources Center is located on Route 225, two miles north of Dauphin. Directions, additional information and reservation forms are available by calling 921-8803 or 1-800-328-0058 and asking for Penn State Cooperative Extension.



Twin Valley Aquaculture

will allow the installation of special forced water systems to ensure improved heating.

In all, about 39 students are involved in aquaculture studies, which provides one credit in agriculture and science, over a two-semester (one year) period. All students, as part of aquaculture, learn how to set up and maintain a tank, learn water nutrient and quality requirements (testing all year long for oxygen availability and water quality), and understand fish species. Students must learn how to identify and breed fish species and care for them until market.

One of the species includes Cichlids, or white tropical fish imported from Africa or South America. The aggressive fish do well under hard water conditions — the type of water available to the facility.

Students also learn about other aquatic life, including macro-invertebrates (water insects), crayfish, and other species, including reptiles and amphibians. They learn to identify and maintain a variety of species including, of course, turtles.

The purpose of the class is to teach students all about "aquatic resources," said Dietrich. "They learn to manage them. I like them to see what goes into it, what they can do."

Some students may choose aquaculture as a career.

"I can see some going to work for the largest provider of fresh water fish, the Pennsylvania Fish Commission, working for them," he noted. "Some may want to study marine biology. Some study environmental science in college." The course provides an introduction to general knowledge about several aquaculture-related fields.

Jeff McCoy, 12th grader, helped to load up a pickup truck filled with an ice drum with about 30-50 catfish, being transported to market.

"They spent a lot of time in the big tank and the raceways," McCoy noted.

Angela Brent plans to enter college, perhaps Rutgers, to study zoology. Amy Kline enjoys working with animals and wants to learn more about animal science. Beth Zerr, who accompanied Angela and Amy to the pond Tuesday, wants to study to be an animal veterinarian.

In the meantime, Twin Valley's ag science program is experiencing renovations.

A proposed new 1,200 square foot aquaculture room is due for construction sometime in June. An animal room will include about 1,000 square feet of space. A power shop will occupy another 1,700 square feet. Two new classrooms will divide the ag area in half, with about 1,000 square feet of space each. The greenhouse will double in size.

The proposed facilities will take about a half year to complete and be ready in January or February of next year, according to Dietrich.

Farm Safety Camp

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — A free one day, Farm Safety Camp will be held at the Ephrata Memorial Park on Saturday June 13, for farm children between the ages of 8 and 13. Children will be able to participate in activities related to safe living, playing and working on farms. Each year many farm children are injured or killed as a result of a farm accident. Between 1990 and 1994, 13 persons living in Lancaster County lost their life as a result of a farm injury. In Pennsylvania, children 14 years of age and under accounted for 31 of the 101 fatalities between 1990 and 1994.

This is the fourth annual Farm Safety Day Camp sponsored by the Lancaster County Safe Kids Coalition. Children will have the opportunity to learn about hidden hazards on the farm, safe use of propane, fire safety, lawn mower and weedeater safety, small power tool safety, grain bins, and other confined space hazards, animal safety, farm equipment safety, water safety and how to use 911 to report an emergency. Breakfast, lunch and other snacks will be provided during the day.

Parents who bring their children to the camp are invited to stay for a special parents program. It will include information on county-wide emergency assistance, age appropriate tasks for children, keeping children safe around farm equipment, and first aid.

Farm families can register to attend the one day safety camp by sending the name, age ,and adult T-shirt size for each child wishing to attend along with the home mailing address, and home phone number to Naomi Johnson, 252 West Farmersville Road, Leola, PA 17540. Parents who are staying should also state that on the registration. Late registration will be accepted if space is available.

This is a community education program of the Lancaster County SAFE KIDS Coalition a partnership with St. Joseph's Hospital and through grants from the PA Department of Agriculture, Core States Bank and Cargill. All farm children are invited to attend.

A member of the Avon-East Lebanon 4-H Community Club, Nathan has participated in the 4-H program for the past 11 years. He has held various club offices and received the Honor 4-H'er award for six years. A senior at Cedar Crest High School, Nathan is active in the German Club and his church youth group.

"Being a 4-H member for the past 10 years has given me many opportunities to develop new skills and a positive attitude," Nathan said in explaining his 4-H experience.

Dana Blouch is the daughter of Allen and Jean Blouch, Lincoln Avenue, Lebanon. She will be a freshman art education major at Messiah College in the fall.

A member of the 4-H Friends Community Club and the 4-H Board of Directors, Dana is enrolled in foods and nutrition, cross-stitch, ceramics, and leadership projects. Dana has been a 4-H camp counselor and attended 4-H State Achievement Days and National 4-H Congress. A senior at Cedar Crest High School, Dana is president of the Key Club and a member of several other high school clubs. She is also very active in her church youth group.

Dana credits the leadership skills she acquired through 4-H projects, serving as a teen leader, and holding various club offices to her successful experiences in school and community activities.

Jessica Watson is the daughter of Jeffrey and Laura-Jean Watson, Newmanstown. She will be a freshman Bible and Youth Ministry major at Lancaster Bible College this fall. A member of the Busy Bees 4-H Club, Jessica has served on the 4-H board of directors as a teen representative and been a 4-H teen leader for the past four years. Jessica was a member of the National 4-H Congress leadership team and participated in state and national Cooperative Education Institutes. She is the current Lebanon Area Fair Queen. A home-schooled senior, Jessica is active in various music and dance groups and has won several speech contests. She is director of the Joy Noise music group.

"4-H has enhanced my personal development and taught me to share the skills I have learned with others. I now want to invest in the lives of youth, because someone cared enough through 4-H to invest in mine," Jessica said regarding her 4-H experience.

Each 4-H member received a $1,000 check and a certificate from the Lebanon County 4-H Trust Fund. Youth between the ages of 8 and 19 are eligible to join the 4-H program which encourages "learn-by-doing" projects and activities. ANSWER — R. Fleckenstein, Woodstown, N.J., wanted information on a double barrel Paragon Model CS 12 gauge shot gun that he has. How old is it and it's value? Thanks to Philip Wiegle, Pottstown, who writes that according to Jane's Guns Recognition Guide, the name Paragon was a store brand name used by a hardware or sporting goods store that had its trade mark stamped on guns made by another manufacturer. Gurns sold under the Paragon trade mark were actually made by the J. Stevens Arms Company, which was purchased by Savage Arms Corp. in 1920.

According to Fjestad's Blue Book of Gun Values, 18th edition, the Savage/Stevens model CS shotgun was an inexpensive, utilitarian-grade firerm. There is no collector interest, so its value would depend on shooting condition. Values on guns of this type typically range between $50 to $175, depending on rarity and condition. Approximately 87,500 model CS shotguns were made from 1926 to 1945, so it is not rare.

ANSWER — For Mae Stancill of Bel Air, Md., Eli Jay Esh, Ronks, sends the words to the following song. He writes that he has remembered it from hearing his mother and older sisters singing it.

Mother's Only A Sleeping

I left my old home, way back in the mountains/My mother was called, to Heaven one day/They carried my mother, up to the graveyard/Everything's lonesome since she went away.

Chorus:

Mother's not dead, she's only a sleeping/Just patiently waiting for Jesus to come/The birds will be singing, while mother lies sleeping/They will sing lower as the grave sinks away.

Nothing seems right around the old homeplace/Even the place where we used to play/ I still love my old home, way back in the mountains/Everythings changed, since she went away.

Mother was good, and now she's in heaven/She was the best pal a friend ever had/I love my old home, way back in the mountain/Since Mother is gone our hearts are so sad.

ANSWER — M. V. Runkles III answers Ruth Erb's question by writing that he mixes powdered sugar with Borax in order to get ants to eat it.

Carpenter Ants Nuisance But Not Threat

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — As the weather warms, homeowners may panic if they notice large black ants—most likely carpenter ants— in and around their house, fearing that the home's structural timbers are at risk to the pests. But even if you have a carpenter ant infestation, you probably have little to worry about, says a Penn State expert.

"Although often blamed for causing damage to wood, carpenter ants are usually little more than a nuisance," says Steven Jacobs, extension entomologist in the College of Agricultural Sciences.

"Carpenter ants are somewhat lazy," Jacobs explains. "They usually attack wood that's already rotted. If they run into a sound dry piece of wood, they generally won't go much farther. But they have been known to cause extensive damage to soft materials, such as insulation board."

Carpenter ant workers are wingless, dark brown to black in color and 1/4 to 1/2 inch long. The winged reproductive ants resemble the workers but are up to 3/4 inch long. The ants' bodies are constricted between the thorax and abdomen.

Because carpenter ants are social insects that live in colonies and excavate wood, they often are mistaken for termites. However, termite workers are creamy white and live hidden from view. Winged termite reproductives may resemble carpenter ants, but termite bodies are not constricted between the thorax and abdomen. Also, termites' antennae are straight with bead-like segments, whereas carpenter ant antennae are elbowed.

In nature, carpenter ants aid in the decomposition of dead, decaying trees by excavating rotted wood for nesting sites. They eat dead insects and other small invertebrates as well as honeydew secreted by aphids and scale insects.

When foraging for food, carpenter ants may find their way inside your house. There, they will feed on meats and foods containing sugar and fat. In some cases, these foraging workers may establish a satellite colony in the house, congregating in existing voids, such as hollow doors or the space between studs in walls.

"In homes, the ants typically do not excavate wood for nest construction," says Jacobs. "The may tunnel through sound structural timbers to reach the void on the other side, but this has little effect on the structural integrity of the timber."

Jacobs says to get rid of the ants, the parent and satellite nests must be found and eliminated:

- Use a flashlight to look for foraging workers at night. "Check basement, attic, garage and building exterior from May though July between the hours of 10 p.m. and 2 a.m.," says Jacobs. "It may be possible to find where they're entering the house or follow them back to their parent colony, which is often located in a tree, log or waste wood within 100 yards of the house. If numerous winged reproductive ants are found at windows inside, they probably came from an indoor nest."
- Check areas where the wood may be wet or damp because of poor ventilation, a leaking roof, defective flashing, overflowing or leaking gutters and downspouts, condensation from water pipes, or leaking bathtubs, showers and appliances. "Look, for piles of coarse, stringy wood particles, dead insect parts and other debris sifting from cracks in the siding, behind moldings, in the basement and attic and under porches," Jacobs says. "Because carpenter ants don't feed on wood, excavated particles are dumped outside the nest. Sattelite colonies within homes can be located by listening for rustling sounds in walls and ceilings using a stethoscope or inverted water glass."
- Remove stumps, logs and waste wood within 100 yards of the building. Do not allow vegetation, especially evergreen shrubs and trees, to be in contact with the house.
- Store firewood away from the house and off the ground, bringing it into the house only when needed.
- Keep wooden parts of the house dry by making needed repairs to roofs, flashing, gutters and downspouts. Replace any water-damaged, decaying wood. "Carpenter ants usually won't infest wood that is sound and has a moisture content of less than 15 percent," Jacobs explains.
- Seal holes through which pipes and wires enter the house.
- Spraying insecticide along baseboards and around doors and windows may stop ants from foraging in those areas temporarily. But because nests are often in walls, it won't eliminate the problem. "Commercial baits aren't very effective for carpenter ants, Jacobs says. "Your best bet is to spray around the exterior of the foundation, which provides a barrier to ant movement. Sprays should be applied at least once a month from April through September for most areas of Pennsylvania.

"Use only products manufactured and approved for this purpose, and carefully follow the instructions and precautions on the label," Jacobs warns.

Jacobs says if you prefer to hire professional help to get rid of carpenter ants, first get estimates from at least three reputable pest control companies.

Plant Tree In Right Spot

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Faced with a droopy, drab or dying tree that you recently paid big bucks for at the nursery? Chances are that the tree is struggling in a site that is ill-suited for its health, says an expert in community forestry in Penn State's School of Forest Resources.

"Too many homeowners go down to the garden center and buy the first tree they see, or whatever is on sale," says Bill Elmendorf, instructor and urban community forest program coordinator. "Homeowners should think in terms of how the tree will fit in the site and how it will look 10 to 20 years down the road."

Elmendorf says a little research into compatible tree species, local soils and municipal regulations can prevent major maintenance headaches or aesthetic disappointments. "If you choose the correct species for a particular site, the tree has less chance of dying and will mature to full growth faster," he says. "You will also save on maintenance over the life of the tree, as well as maintenance to sidewalks and curbs."

Elmendorf says understanding the planting site is the most important part of choosing a tree, especially to ensure a pleasing landscape. However, homeowners also should pay attention to what is below the ground, above the tree and near the site.

"You need to consider where storm drains, electric utilities and gas lines are," Elmendorf warns. "Pay attention to the location of traffic and business signs and how far away the tree will be from the curb or sidewalk."

Analyzing a site for planting a tree requires just a few basic steps.

• Temperature. Know the temperature range for your area, particularly low temperatures. "Planting a tropical palm tree in Pennsylvania isn't a good idea," Elmendorf says.

"Most southern trees don't do well in northern climates. Tree species such as oak, or poplar that normally thrive in norther states may not do well if they came from southern seed sources."

• Moisture. Homeowners should estimate the amount of rainfall in their area. If the tree is to be planted in an urban setting, ask how much water is available. "Most city trees are surrounded by concrete and asphalt and don't get much moisture unless someone's washing off the sidewalk," Elmendorf says.

• Soil. Most trees do well in neutral or slightly acidic soils. Trees such as red oaks, pin oaks and red maples planted in limestone-laden alkaline soils will experience nutrition problems. "This is a problem in urban areas because concrete is full of limestone, and asphalt roads usually are built on bed of crushed limestone," Elmendorf says.

• Soil compaction. In cities and residential developments, soils are very compacted, making it difficult, if not impossible, for trees to thrive. "Almost all soils in urban areas are more compacted and may be nutritionally poor," Elmendorf says. "I recommend digging a 4-by-4 foot hole to a depth of 4 feet and filling it with high quality topsoil."

•Drainage. Elmendorf says a tree that gets too much water will be unhealthy. "Dig a hole and pour in a bucket of water," Elmendorf instructs. "If it doesn't recede an inch an hour, you'll have problems.

• Space. Elmendorf also recommends analyzing the growing space for trees, to make sure there is enough room for canopy and root growth. "Big trees need big space," he adds.

Homeowners also should be aware of how trees modify the climate of a home. To create shaded areas, Elmendorf recommends planting on the east and west side of a house. "Whatever you do, don't plant a tree on the southern side of the house," he says. "Trees on the south side prevent solar energy from reaching the house in winter."

Elmendorf recommends consulting a reputable nursery or qualified arborist before planting any trees. He also recommends the Penn State publication Street Tree Factsheets, available for $20 from Penn State's Agricultural Publications Distribution Center at (814) 865-6713.

MACCA Exam Deadline Nears

EDGEWATER, Md. — The sign-up deadline for the Mid-Atlantic Certified Crop Adviser (MACCA) exam to be held in this region on Friday, August 7, 1998 is fast approaching.

All registration forms for the exams which will be held at the Holiday Inn Monticello, Charlottesville, Virginia, but be received by June 26, 1998.

The Mid-Atlantic Certified Crop Adviser Board has been established for New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, and, West Virginia.

The Certified Crop Adviser (CCA) program is a nationally recognized, voluntary certification program developed through the collaborative efforts of the public sector and the agricultural industry to ensure high standards for crop advisers.

It is intended for anyone who makes nutrient, pesticide, crop, or environmental recommendations to producers, including dealers, distributors, applicators, consultants, manufacturers, allied industries, and state and federal agency personnel.

To date over 214 individuals have passed the rigorous 6 hours of exams and become certified.

The CCA program is administered by state or regional boards in association with the American Society of Agronomy, which handles similar programs for specialists in agronomy, crop consulting, weed science and other agricultural disciplines.

To become Mid-Atlantic CCA certified, an applicant must:

- have at least two years of crop advising experience with a bachelor's of science degree in agriculture, three years of crop advising experience with an associate degree in agriculture, or have a minimum of four years of crop advising experience post high school;
- provide employer and client references;
- pass a national and the two MACCA regional exams; and
- sign a code of ethics.

To remain certified, a member must participate in 40 hours of continuing education over a two year period with a minimum of 10 hours in any other year, and undergo an audit biannually by the MACCA Board to verify continuing education and adherence to the code of ethics.

The deadline for the August 7, 1998 exam is June 26, 1998.

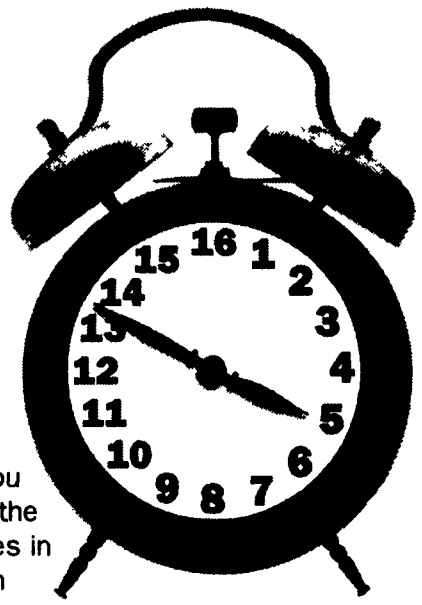
IT'S LIKE HAVING EXTRA HOURS EACH DAY.



A Case-IH Axial Flow Combine from Hoober, Inc. gives a farmer the most precious commodity of all during harvest season... time.That's because Case-IH combines have a unique rotor design which enables you to harvest in wet conditions... so you harvest longer each day. Dew in the field keeps conventional combines in the barn because a combine with straw walkers can't handle wet conditions. And, more hours in the field each day, for the entire harvesting season, means greater productivity and profit for you.

WHY HOOBER... (3 BIG REASONS)

1. Since Hoober, Inc. sells the most combines, we can offer the best finance deals.

2. Our staff has the knowledge to put you in a Case-IH combine that's right for your size operation and can customize your new combine to your crop and field conditions.

3. Hoober's revolutionary UPTIME SERVICE concept ensures peak efficiency for years to come.

Visit Hoober, Inc. and get the best combine in the business backed by the best support team in the business.

Oh, by the way... extra harvesting hours are free.

NASDA Supports Plant Protection Act

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The National Association of State Departments of Agriculture (NASDA) expressed its strong support for Rep. Canady's legislation, HR 3766, "the Plant Protection Act."

"American agriculture is the safest and most productive in the world, and Canady's legislation helps to ensure that it stays that way," and Gus Douglass, chair of NASDA's Animal and Plant Industries Committee and commissioner of the West Virginia Department of Agriculture. "The commissioners, secretaries and directors of the state departments of agriculture applaud Rep. Canady for introducing this important legislation and the committee for holding today's important hearing."

A letter to the House Agriculture Committee, NASDA urged "The committee and the Congress to act quickly to approve this important and long overdue legislation."

NASDA President D. Leslie Tindal noted that "Every day the state departments of agriculture are faced with plant pest and disease concerns that have the potential to threaten the vitality of the agricultural industry."

"This legislation is needed so that the agriculture community can better respond to emergency situations and to provide the appropriate authority to the USDA in the detection, control, eradication, suppression and/or prevention of the spread of plant pests and diseases," Tindal said.

Pioneer Promotes Reinhart

DES MOINES, Iowa–Rodger Reinhart has been promoted to forage products manager for North American seed sales at Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc.

As a member of Pioneer's new Forage Products and Nutritional Support Team, Reinhart will have responsibility for corn silage, alfalfa, high moisture corn, and inoculant product lines.

Reinhart joined Pioneer in 1982, serving in agronomy and field sales manager positions in Illinois and Wisconsin. Most recently he was regional manager with the nutrition and industry markets division.

Reinhart received a bachelor of science degree in agricultural business and public service and administration in agriculture, as well as a master of science in agronomy from Iowa State University.

"The Pioneer Forage Products and Nutritional Support Team is just one example of Pioneer's commitment to providing forage products and nutritional and agronomic management information to producers in North American," said Bob Wichmann, vice president, North American sales. "Rodgers's expertise with forages and inoculants will ensure that customers who feed Pioneer products will continue to receive the wide selection of high quality feedstuffs their animals need for optimum production.:

Dekalb Releases Record Number Of New Products

DEKALB, Ill. — Dekalb Genetics Corporation has introduced a record 73 new products in 1998: 28 corn hybrids, 35 soybean varieties, four sorghum hybrids, four alfalfa varieties, and two sunflower hybrids.

The lineup of products includes the industry's first Roundup Ready® corn hybrids and the first Roundup Ready / YieldGard® stacked-trait corn hybrid.

"These new products are the result of years of research and field testing across the country," said Jim Haldeman, Dekalb's agronomist for the Northeast. "Our conventional breeding and biotechnology research programs are providing farmers with exciting new elite germplasm and more choices which combat difficult crop pests, increase yields, and may reduce crop input costs while being safer for operators and the environment.

"These new hybrids provide growers with more options to combat the weeds and insects which can significantly lower yields and reduce profitability," Haldeman said.

Roundup Ready hybrids are tolerant to over-the-top application of Roundup Ultra™ herbicide. The Bt hybrids protect yield against loss from European corn borer. The IMI hybrids are tolerant to direct applications of imidazolinone-based herbicides which are labeled for use in IMI-Corn™ hybrids. The stacked-trait hybrid will offer growers both Roundup Ultra tolerance and protection from corn borer damage.

Limited introductory quantities of these varieties will be available for farmers to plant this year, Haldeman said. Dekalb also will include the new products in field trials and test plots during the upcoming season for all farmers to view.

The toll-free 1-888-GO-LIBLINK line was activated upon the registratin of Liberty Herbicide last year. Not only does the Liberty call center provide a resource for getting direct answers to questions, but it also serves as a fulfillment center.

"Whether you need a LibertyLink seed guide or information sheet, our center will be able to fill your request," said Donald.

Woods Offers Landscape Tools

ROCKFORD, Ill. — Woods Equipment Company offers an extensive line of three-point hitch landscape attachments, including pulverizers, renovators, core aerators, rakes, rear blades, and scrapers.

The wide variety of landscape tools provide a cost-effective way to offer full service lawn installation and renovation services.

"Woods Equipment Company is committed to offering a comprehensive line of landscape installation and renovation tools," said Pete Officer, marketing manager for turf and grounds at Woods Equipment Company. "Our attachments are designed to meet the heavy-duty requirement of landscapers."

Woods' Gill brand professional-grade soil pulverizers are rugged and durable to easily handle difficult soil. Both the single and double roller pulverizer feature replaceable 3/8 inch, high carbon steel roller pins and 150 pound compression springs to force roller pins and spikes into the soil.

The pulverizer features 8 inch alloy steel scarifying spikes with 3 inch penetration, while the big tooth pulverizer offers reversible 13 inch hardened steel spikes to increase penetration and scarification and lessen the chance of bending, even in rocky soil. It is rated up to 65 HP for the toughest conditions.

The Woods' Gill brand renovators are turf aeration and seedbed preparation tools. Ideal for pulverizing, aerating and seeding, the Woods' Gill brand renovators have replaceable, tapered steel pins for exceptional ground penetration and an optional seedbox attachment featuring precision metered gears for greater control of seed distribution. In addition, the seedbox drive mechanism provides easy engagement and disengagement without removing the seedbox.

The Super Turf Renovator (STR) offers manually adjustable front rollers, which regulate crabbing and control the level of aerification, while the Turf Renovator, available in 72 inch width, is designed to provide the versatility of the STR without the added aerification control of adjustable rollers.

Woods medium-duty landscape rakes both feature high carbon spring steel tines.

The Gill brand core aerator is a professional-grade plugger, designed to reduce hard layer compaction in soil and increase turf vitality. A heavy-duty, reinforced frame, 1-1/4 inch diameter shaft and independently acting gangs of spoon wheels ensure performance in tough soil conditions. Also, the reinforced, heavy-duty carrier frame holds up to 1000 lb. of additional weight, allowing greater control over spoon penetration in a variety of soil types.

With an all purpose design for scraping, ditching and plowing, Woods rear blades offer the ability to manually change the angle, offset or tilt for superior grading and leveling. They are formed with a moldband curvature for maximum strength and less drag. The 13 models are rated from 40 HP (4,000 pound max. weight) up to 150 HP (15,000 pound maximum weight).

Woods medium-duty and heavy-duty landscape rakes both feature high carbon spring steel tines. The medium-duty rake also has a heavy-duty tine beam and is rated up to 40 HP; whereas the heavy-duty rake, rated for tractors up to 60 HP, features a single bolt tine attachment, formed box type tine beam and an angle and offset feature.

Woods offers HB and GB series box scrapers in multiple sizes for every application. These fixed scar box scrapers range from 48 to 84 working widths and have from 4 to 6 points and shanks. Both series have three positions: scrape, backfill and scarify, and the HB series features a floating tailgate with a reversible cutting edge.

Like the fixed box scrapers, the roll over scraper ranges from 48 to 84 working widths and has three positions — scrape, backfill and scarify. In addition, it also features a heavy-duty A-frame and high carbon reversible cutting edges.

The retractable Gill box scrapers, which can scarify, grade, level and backfill, feature a balanced lift scar bar retracting mechanism; replaceable, hardened points and shanks; and a hinged, curved tailgate These scrapers range from 58 to 84 inch working widths.

New Detacher Features Dependability at Low Cost

MADISON, Wis. — Bou-Matic, a Company of DEC International, Inc., located here, has announced the addition of a new detacher to the Signature 4000 Series line of detachers. Joining the 4200D, 4400D, and the 4600D is the Signature 4000D model detacher.

Featuring a slim, compact design and fully automatic operation, the Signature 4000D detacher is an economically priced non-metered parlor detacher made of lightweight durable ABS plastic. The Signature 4000D model detacher offers value-conscious dairy producers a 90-second let down delay and end of milking delay in a rugged, easy to clean, unit.

"The Signature 4000D is vacuum operated so it can use the pulsation line as the vacuum supply," said Ron Curran, product manager for Bou-Matic. "It doesn't require an air compressor."

Curran noted that the Signature 4000D uses moisture proof electronics and non-restrictive, electronic flow sensor to maintain vacuum stability at teat end. "The vacuum stability helps to milk cows faster and more gently," said Curran.

The signature 4000 detacher joins three other models in the Signature 4000 Series line of detachers that were introduced at World Dairy Expo in October last year. "These detachers offer the dairy producer the greatest flexibility in choosing a detacher," said Ron Curran. "From the economical model 4000D to the stainless steel model 4600D, there is a Bou-Matic Signature 4000 Series detacher to please any dairy producer."

NFU Supports Clinton's Commitment To Broaden World Trade Negotiations

GENEVA, SWITZERLAND — National Farmers Union (NFU) called the commitment of President Bill Clinton to reform the World Trade Organization (WTO) "an important development."

Addressing the WTO Ministerial Conference here recently, the president pledged to make the world trade negotiating system more inclusive and to push for future negotiations to be broadened to include labor, the environment, and other issues impacting U.S. agricultural producers.

"The president's speech to the WTO is a positive change in direction for family farmers and ranchers, as a pledge was made to include all stakeholders in future trade negotiations," said Tom Buis, NFU vice president of government relations.

"Farmers Union is very pleased with President Clinton's commitment to seek future trade agreements that encourage other nations to raise their quality standards, rather than the current system which has forced the United States to lower its standards," Buis said. "NFU also is pleased that the president affirmed the right of nations to set domestic standards which protect health and safety, the environment and biodiversity, even when they are stronger than international standards."

Buis also noted that President Clinton announced his support of an expanded trade grievance negotiating process. Currently only the parties directly involved in a trade dispute can argue their cases. Clinton supports allowing third parties with vested interests to participate by filing Amicus briefs.

In addition, NFU praised U.S. Department of Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman and U.S. Trade Representative Charlene Barshefsky for aggressively seeking a solution to halt European Union subsidized barley from being exported to the United States. "Glickman and Barshefsky and their teams are working very hard to ensure that this does not happen again," said Buis.

Buis represented NFU at the WTO conference, which was held to outline a plan for negotiations on agriculture and the service industry beginning in 2000. Clinton and many other world leaders addressed the WTO on the occasion of the world body's 50th anniversary. (WTO was formerly called GATT.)

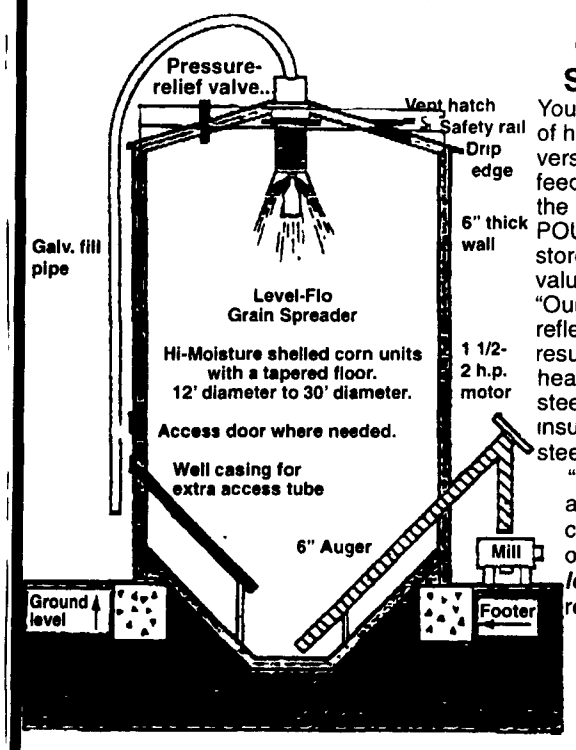
HI-MOISTURE SHELLED CORN SILO WITH HOPPER FLOOR



"Hi-Moisture Shelled Corn"

You know the advantages of hi-moisture shelled corn versus dry corn for animal feeding. So now consider the many advantages of POURED CONCRETE to store and protect your valuable grain.

"Our 6" thick concrete walls reflect 38% of light beams, resulting in 780 times more heat-resisting ability than steel, and 25 times more insulating power than steel."

"Our 6" thick walls have a very low leak potential compared to prefab silos of any kind, and a very low maintenance requirement."
